Introduction

This book—which can be used alone, along with another writing-skills text of your choice, or in combination with the LearningExpress publication, Writing Skills Success in 20 Minutes a Day—will give you practice dealing with capitalization, punctuation, basic grammar, sentence structure, organization, paragraph development, and essay writing. It is designed to be used by individuals working on their own and for teachers or tutors helping students learn or review basic writing skills. Additionally, practicing with 501 Grammar and Writing Questions will greatly alleviate writing anxiety.

Many people grimace when faced with grammar exercises. But in order to communicate with others, pass tests, and get your point across in writing, using words and punctuation effectively is a necessary skill. Maybe you're one of the millions of people who, as a student in elementary or high school, found memorizing grammar rules tedious. Maybe you were confused by all of the exceptions to those rules. Maybe you thought they would just come naturally as you continued to write and speak.

First, know you are not alone. It is true that some people work very hard to understand the rules, while others seem to have a natural gift for writing. And that's okay; we all have unique talents. Still, it's a fact that most jobs today require good communication skills, including writing. The good news is that grammar and writing skills can be developed with practice.

Learn by doing. It's an old lesson, tried and true. The 501 grammar and writing questions included in these pages are designed to provide you with lots of practice. As you work through each set of questions, you'll be gaining a solid understanding of basic grammar and usage rules. And all without memorizing! This book will help you improve your language skills through encouragement, not frustration.

► An Overview

501 Grammar and Writing Questions is divided into six sections:

- Section 1: Mechanics: Capitalization and Punctuation
- Section 2: Sentence Structure
- Section 3: Agreement
- Section 4: Modifiers
- Section 5: Paragraph Development
- Section 6: Essay Questions

Each section is subdivided into short sets consisting of 8–20 questions.

The book is specifically organized to help you build confidence as you further develop your written-language skills. 501 Grammar and Writing Questions begins with the basic mechanics of capitalization and punctuation, and then moves on to grammar and sentence structure. By the time you reach the section on paragraph development, you've already practiced on almost 300 questions. You will then continue practicing the skills you've already begun to master in the previous four sections, this time, in combination. When you get to the last section, you'll be ready to write your own essays.

► How to Use This Book

Whether you're working alone or helping someone brush up on grammar and usage, this book will give you the opportunity to practice, practice, practice.

Working on Your Own

If you are working alone to review the basics or prepare for a test in connection with a job or school, you will probably want to use this book in combination with a basic grammar and usage text, or with Writing Skills Success in 20 Minutes a Day. If you're fairly sure of your basic language-mechanics skills, however, you can use 501 Grammar and Writing Questions by itself.

Use the answer key at the end of the book not only to find out if you chose the right answer, but also to learn how to tackle similar kinds of questions next time. Every answer is explained. Make sure you understand the explanations—usually by going back to the questions—before moving on to the next set.

Tutoring Others

This book will work well in combination with almost any basic grammar and usage text. You will probably find it most helpful to give students a brief lesson in the particular skill they'll be learning—capitalization, punctuation, subject-verb agreement, pronoun agreement, sentence structure, style—and then have them spend the remainder of the session answering the questions in the sets. You will want to impress upon them the importance of learning by doing, checking their answers, and reading the explanations carefully. Make sure they understand a particular set of questions before you assign the next one.

Mechanics: Capitalization and Punctuation

Since every sentence begins with a capital, the how-to's of capitalization seem like a logical place to begin learning about language mechanics. When doing the exercises in this section, refer to the following checklist. Matching your answer to a rule will reinforce the mechanics of writing and secure that knowledge for you.

► Capitalization Checklist

- ✓ The first word of every sentence→Yes, we do carry the matching bed skirt.
- ✓ The first word of a quoted sentence (not just a quoted phrase)→And with great flourish, he sang, "O beautiful for gracious skies, for amber waves of grain!"
- ✓ The specific name of a person (and his or her title), a place, or a thing (otherwise known as proper nouns). Proper nouns include specific locations and geographic regions; political, social, and athletic organizations and agencies; historical events; documents and periodicals; nationalities and their language; religions, their members and their deities; brand or trade names; and holidays.
- ✓ The abbreviation for proper nouns. Government agencies are probably the most frequently abbreviated. Remember to capitalize each letter.→The CIA makes me feel very secure.
- ✓ Adjectives (descriptive words) derived from proper nouns.
Ex: America (proper noun)→the American (adjective) flag
- ✓ The pronoun I.
- ✓ The most important words in a title→Last March, I endured a twenty-hour public reading of A Tale of Two Cities.

► Punctuation Checklist

Periods

- ✓ At the end of a declarative sentence (sentence that makes a statement)→Today, I took a walk to nowhere.
- ✓ At the end of a command or request→Here's a cloth. Now gently burp the baby on your shoulder.
- ✓ At the end of an indirect question→Jane asked if I knew where she had left her keys.
- ✓ Before a decimal number→Statisticians claim that the average family raises 2.5 children.
- ✓ Between dollars and cents→I remember when $1.50 could buy the coolest stuff.
- ✓ After an initial in a person's name→You are Sir James W. Dewault, are you not?
- ✓ After an abbreviation→On Jan. 12, I leave for Africa.

Question Marks

- ✓ At the end of a question→Why do you look so sad?
- ✓ Inside a quotation mark when the quote is a question→She asked, "Why do you look so sad?"

Exclamation Points

- ✓ At the end of a word, phrase, or sentence filled with emotion→Hurry up! I cannot be late for the meeting!
- ✓ Inside a quotation mark when the quote is an exclamation→The woman yelled, "Hurry up! I cannot be late for the meeting!"

Quotation Marks

- ✓ When directly quoting dialogue, not when paraphrasing→Hamlet says, "To be, or not to be. That is the question."
- ✓ For titles of chapters, articles, short stories, poems, songs, or periodicals→My favorite poem is "The Road Not Taken."

Semicolons

- ✓ Between two independent clauses (an independent clause is a complete thought. It has a subject and a predicate.)→Edward joined the basketball team; remarkably, the 5'4" young man excelled at the sport.
- ✓ Between elements in a series that uses commas →The possible dates for the potluck dinner are Thursday, June 5; Saturday, June 7; or Monday, June 9.

Colons

- ✓ Between two complete ideas when the second idea explains the first.→Keri pushed her dinner away: She had eaten on the car ride home.
- ✓ Before a list→Grandma brought Chloe's favorite three sweets: chocolate kisses, Tootsie Rolls, and a Snickers bar.
- ✓ Between titles and subtitles→Finding Your Dream Home: A Buyer's Guide.
- ✓ Between volumes and page numbers→Marvel Comics 21:24
- ✓ Between chapters and verse→Job 4:12
- ✓ Between hours and minutes→It's 2:00 A.M.—time to sleep.

Apostrophes

- ✓ Where letters or numbers have been deleted—as in a contraction→I looked at my father and whispered, "It's (It is) okay to cry every so often."
- ✓ At the end of a name where there is ownership (remember to also add an s after the apostrophe if the word or name does not end in an s already)

Commas

- ✓ Between items in dates and addresses→Michael arrived at Ellis Island, New York, on February 14, 1924.
- ✓ Between words in a list→The university hired a woman to direct the Bursar’s, Financial Aid, and Registrar’s offices.
- ✓ Between equally important adjectives (be careful not to separate adjectives that describe each other)→The reporter spoke with several intense, talented high school athletes.
- ✓ After a tag that precedes a direct quote→David whined, “I am famished.”
- ✓ In a quote that precedes a tag and is not a question or an exclamation→“I am famished,” whined David.
- ✓ Around nonessential clauses, parenthetical phrases, and appositives (A nonessential or nonrestrictive clause is a word or group of words that are not necessary for the sentence’s completion; a parenthetical phrase interrupts the flow of a sentence; and an appositive is a word or group of words that rename the noun preceding them)→Matt’s mother, Janie (appositive), who has trouble with directions (non-essential clause), had to ask for help.
- ✓ After introductory words, phrases, and clauses→Hoping for the best, we checked our luggage.
- ✓ Before conjunctions (Conjunctions are words that link two independent clauses together)→Drew wanted to experience ballroom dancing before his wedding, so he signed up for lessons at a local hall.

Sentence Structure

A sentence is like a Christmas present: Assembly is always required. Fortunately, the instructions are fairly basic. Every sentence must have at least a subject and a predicate. The subject is the focus of the sentence; it is the who or the what the sentence is about. The predicate describes the subject; it explains what the subject is or what the subject is doing. The completed idea is called a clause, and it is the building block of all sentences.

First, you have to know these terms:

- ✓ Independent clause: a clause that expresses a complete thought. → Monica walked on the grass.
- ✓ Dependent (subordinate) clause: a clause that does not express a complete thought. → Though it was wet
- ✓ A complete thought → Though it was wet, Monica walked on the grass.
- ✓ Essential clause: a dependent clause that is necessary to the basic meaning of the completed sentence.
→ who are pregnant
Women who are pregnant can crave salty or sweet foods.
- ✓ Nonessential clause: a dependent clause that is not necessary to the basic meaning of the completed sentence. → who growls whenever the phone rings
Elmo, who growls whenever the phone rings, tried to attack the vacuum cleaner.
- ✓ Phrase: a group of words that lack either a subject or a predicate. → In early spring
In early spring, I notice a change in people's attitudes.
- ✓ Appositive: a phrase that makes a preceding noun or pronoun clearer or more definite by explaining or identifying it. → rice pudding and fruit salad
Candice's grandfather brought her favorite desserts, rice pudding and fruit salad.

- ✓ Fragment: a phrase punctuated like a sentence even though it does not express a complete thought. → Timothy saw the car. And ran.
- ✓ Coordinating Conjunction: a word that when preceded by a comma or a semicolon joins two independent and equal clauses. (and, but, so, or, for, nor, yet) → Dorothy had a beautiful rose garden, and her yard was a profusion of color every summer.
- ✓ Subordinating Conjunction: a word that makes a clause a dependent clause (after, although, as, because, before, if, once, since, than, that, though, unless, until, when, whenever, where, wherever, while) → After the accident, mourners covered the beaches nearest to the tragedy with roses.
- ✓ Conjunctive Adverb: a word that introduces a relationship between two independent clauses (accordingly, besides, consequently, furthermore, hence, however, instead, moreover, nevertheless, otherwise, then, therefore, thus) → On Tuesdays, I play racquetball; otherwise, I would go with you.

To construct a sentence:

- ✓ Always have at least one independent clause in the sentence.
- ✓ Join two independent clauses with a semicolon or a comma and a conjunction. → Chaucer was a narrator, and he was a pilgrim in his Canterbury Tales.
- ✓ Do not run two or more independent clauses together without punctuation; that error is appropriately called a run-on. Wrong: Chaucer was a narrator and he was a pilgrim in his Canterbury Tales.
- ✓ Do not separate two independent clauses with just a comma; that error is called a comma splice. Wrong: Chaucer was a narrator, he was a pilgrim in his Canterbury Tales.
- ✓ Do not use a conjunctive adverb (the words accordingly, besides, consequently, furthermore, hence, however, instead, moreover, nevertheless, otherwise, then, therefore, thus) like a conjunction. Wrong: Chaucer was a narrator, moreover he was a pilgrim in his Canterbury Tales.

- ✓ Use a comma after a conjunctive adverb when it follows a semicolon. (See Conjunctive Adverbs)
- ✓ Use a comma after introductory words, phrases, and clauses. (See Subordinating Clauses)
- ✓ Use commas around nonessential clauses. Do not use commas around essential clauses. (See Nonessential and Essential Clauses)
- ✓ Use commas around appositives. (See Appositives)
- ✓ Use commas around parenthetical elements (a word or group of words that interrupt a sentence's flow). → Mrs. Moses, that mean old crone, yelled at little Paula for laughing too loud!

Agreement

Agreement is a very important step in constructing a coherent sentence. There are three basic agreements in a sentence: subject-verb agreement, tense agreement, and antecedent-pronoun agreement.

First, you have to know the definition of a verb:

- ✓ Verb: a word or group of words describing the action or the state of being of a subject.

Subject-Verb Agreement

- ✓ If the subject is singular, the verb is singular; if the subject is plural, the verb is plural → Mrs. Hendrickson feeds the birds every day. Or: The Hendricksons feed the birds every day.
- ✓ Subjects joined by and are plural and receive a plural verb → Jolie and Lara swim together every Thursday.
- ✓ Subjects joined by or or nor adopt the singularity or plurality of the last subject; accordingly, the verb matches it → Either that cat or those dogs have been eating my snacks!

Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

- ✓ Each, either, neither, anybody, anyone, everybody, everyone, no one, nobody, one, somebody, and someone are singular pronouns and receive singular verbs.
- ✓ Both, few, many, and several are plural pronouns and receive plural verbs.
- ✓ All, any, most, none, and some can be singular or plural pronouns, depending on their use. These pronouns can receive plural or singular verbs.
- ✓ Do not be confused by words or phrases that follow a subject that are not the subject → One of the chairs is damaged.

Tense Agreement

- ✓ Maintain one tense in a complete thought: past tense or present tense. →

Incorrect: In the game of hide and seek, Bobby chased Mary and tag her from behind.

Correct: In the game of hide and seek, Bobby chased Mary and tagged her from behind.

Incorrect: Dusk had just settled when I see a fawn timidly step onto the beach.

Correct: Dusk had just settled when I saw a fawn timidly step onto the beach.

Do not use of in place of have.

You cannot avoid pronouns. Pronouns substitute for nouns. Instead of saying, “Because Janie was late, Janie hopped on Janie’s moped, and Janie raced to the wedding,” you would say, “Because Janie was late, she hopped on her moped, and she raced to the wedding.”

In this section, you will not only clarify ambiguous pronouns and assure pronoun-antecedent agreement, you will also grapple with contractions. All too often, certain pronouns and contractions are confused. “The file cabinet drawer snagged on an overstuffed folder; it’s now stuck just before its halfway point.” It’s is a contraction meaning it is, while its is a possessive pronoun meaning the drawer’s halfway point. The only visual difference between the two is an apostrophe neatly inserted between the t and the s in the contraction.

Do You Know These Terms?

- ✓ Antecedent: In the last example, Janie is the specific noun that she and her replace; so Janie is the antecedent. The presence of the antecedent in a sentence is as important as which pronouns substitute for it.
- ✓ Contractions: When two words are made into one by omitting letters and using an apostrophe to highlight the omission—that’s a contraction.

- ✓ Subjective, Objective, and Possessive Cases: Persons or things (nouns) acting on other things are subjects. Pronouns that refer to these subjects are in the subjective case (I, you, he, she, we, they, who). Persons or things acted upon (in other words, they are not performing the action) are objects. Pronouns that refer to these objects are in the objective case (me, you, him, her, us, them, whom). Subjects or objects that claim ownership of something are possessors. Pronouns that claim their possessions are in the possessive case (my, your, his, her, our, your, whose).

- ✓ Avoid Ambiguous Pronoun References. The antecedent that a pronoun refers to must be clearly stated and in close proximity to its pronoun.

If more subjects than one are present, indicate which subject is the antecedent. → When Katherine and Melissa left for England, she promised to write me about all their adventures. Who is she? Katherine or Melissa?

Pronouns should

- ✓ Agree in number with their antecedent: Singular antecedents use singular pronouns, and plural antecedents use plural pronouns.
- ✓ Compound antecedents joined by and use plural pronouns. → A horse and a donkey make a mule. Even though the horse and the donkey are singular subjects, together they create one plural subject.
- ✓ Compound antecedents joined by or or nor use pronouns that agree with the nearest antecedent. → Neither my one cat nor my four dogs are as difficult to maintain as my one pet fish.
- ✓ Collective nouns use singular pronouns unless it is obvious that every person or thing in the group act individually. → The company mandated a universal naptime for all its employees. They felt workers could sustain productivity longer into the afternoon if they

Modifiers

Adjectives and adverbs modify subjects and/or their actions in a sentence. In the sentence, “The orange and striped cat leapt nimbly across the dresser,” adjectives and adverbs specify what kind of cat (an “orange and striped cat”) and how that cat leapt (“nimbly”). All too often, adjectives and adverbs are confused for one another. However, in this section, you will put each in its proper place and in its proper form.

First, you have to know the definition of a modifier:

- ✓ A modifier describes or limits another word. → Lily is a subject. Add the word tiger before lily and the subject is modified: It is now a specific type of lily. Pushed is an action word. Add shyly and the action is limited: It is now a gentler action. Put the subject, its action, and the modifiers all together and the sentence reads: Unlike its fierce namesake, the tiger lily pushed its head shyly through the soil.

Types of Modifiers

- ✓ Adjectives modify nouns or pronouns. (Hint: An adjective answers one of three questions: which one, what kind, or how many?)
- ✓ Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, other adverbs, or whole groups of words. (Hint: An adverb answers one of four questions: where, when, how, or to what extent?)
- ✓ Comparatives are adjectives and adverbs used to compare two things.
- ✓ Superlatives are adjectives and adverbs used to compare more than two things.

Follow this guideline and you will do well (well describes the verb to do; therefore it is an adverb!):

- ✓ Always identify whether a modifier describes or limits a sentence’s subject or its action.
- ✓ Use good and bad to describe nouns.
- ✓ Use well and badly to describe verbs, except when well means “fit” or “healthy.” When well describes a state of being, it is an adjective. → With repetition, you will soon write well. Well describes how the subject writes; it is an adverb. After two months of physical therapy, Bob was well. Well describes Bob's state of being; it is an adjective.

- ✓ Use an adjective after a linking verb. The following words are linking verbs when they express a state of being: look, sound, smell, feel, taste, appear, seem, become, grow, turn, prove, remain, and stay. → Howard leaned over and surreptitiously smelled Lee; she smelled sweet. Surreptitiously describes how Howard sniffed at the other person; in this case, it is an adverb because it describes the act of smelling. Sweet describes Lee; the word smell links the adjective back to the subject.
- ✓ Use the adjective fewer to describe plural nouns and the adjective less to describe singular nouns.
- ✓ Use the word number to describe plural nouns and the word amount to describe singular nouns.
- ✓ Add -er to a modifier or place the word more or less before the modifier to compare two things. This creates a comparison. (Hint: One to two syllable modifiers usually receive the suffix -er; modifiers with more than two syllables use more or less before them.)
- ✓ Add -est to a modifier or place the word most or least before the modifier to indicate the extreme degree of a thing (Hint: One- to two-syllable modifiers receive -est; modifiers with more than two syllables use most or least before them.)
- ✓ Avoid double comparatives or double superlatives. Adding the suffix -er or -est to a modifier and preceding the modifier with more or most is redundant. → Lindsey amazed the class with her grammatical skills; she was the most smartest person they had ever seen. Lindsey is already the smartest. Most also means smartest—the phrase most smartest is redundant.
- ✓ Avoid double negatives unless you mean to express the positive. → Tom hardly did not feel tense whenever he approached grammar. Hardly and did not cancel each other out. The sentence really reads: Tom felt tense whenever approaching grammar.
- ✓ Avoid illogical comparisons. Some words already indicate an extreme degree; like double comparatives and double superlatives, adding the word more or most before such words is redundant. → Some women believe Brad Pitt is more perfect than Matt Damon. There are not degrees of perfection; one is either perfect or not perfect. However, one can more nearly approach perfection than someone else.

Paragraph Development

Paragraphs are groups of related sentences that form complete units. They usually support the main ideas of an essay, article, or story; however, every paragraph has an identity and an idea of its own. A paragraph is like a miniature essay. For practice in paragraph development and unity, Section 5 will ask you to identify the best topic sentence for a particular paragraph, to find the sentence that best develops a topic, and to eliminate the sentence that does not belong. You will also choose the best order for a group of sentences. The guideline below will help you organize your paragraphs. Since paragraphs and essays are similar in structure, these guidelines can be applied to the organization of an entire essay.

- ✓ Write a paragraph to explore a single idea using a topic sentence near the beginning of the paragraph.
- ✓ Maintain paragraph unity, the logical development of a single idea in a group of related sentences, by using:
 - a consistent organizing strategy. Paragraphs not only present ideas, they group detailed information necessary to develop ideas. Organizing strategies arrange that information into logical and easy-to-anticipate patterns. These patterns can be top-to-bottom, left-to-right, near-to-far, then-to-now, beginning-to-ending, general-to-specific, least important-to-most important, least familiar-to-most familiar or simplest-to-most complex. Other strategies use stories, descriptions, examples, definitions, categorizations, comparisons and contrasts, or causes and effects to logically organize information. As you become more proficient at writing, you will probably incorporate more than one strategy in a paragraph.
 - parallelisms. By arranging sentences in identical patterns, a writer can convey that two different things are equally important. Patterning sentence structure is called parallelism. → Bob quickly ran to the store; Alex also quickly ran to the store. It was a race to see who was fastest.
 - repeated words or word groups. Though similar to parallelisms, repeated word groups can occur anywhere in a sentence. → Humans still worship trees. Rain or shine, they still marvel at the solstice.

- transitional phrases or words to connect sentences and/or ideas → First, Katie gathered the ingredients. Then she assembled the meal.

✓ Important: Try not to shift the number of things, a pronoun's case or a verb's tense in a paragraph unless your organizing strategy requires it.

SET 28 (Answers begin on page 116.)

_____. Hearsay that depends on the statement's truthfulness is inadmissible because the witness does not appear in court and swear an oath to tell the truth. This means that his or her demeanor when making the statement is not visible to the jury, the accuracy of the statement cannot be tested under cross-examination, and to introduce it would be to deprive the accused of the constitutional right to confront the accuser.

- 306.
- a. Hearsay evidence is not acceptable in a criminal trial because the witness cannot be cross-examined.
 - b. Hearsay evidence in a trial is inadmissible because there is too great a chance that it will be false.
 - c. The definition of hearsay evidence is the "secondhand reporting of a statement" and is sometimes allowable.
 - d. Hearsay evidence, which is the secondhand reporting of a statement, is allowed in court only when the truth of the statement is irrelevant.

_____. Any truck that finishes its assigned route before the end of the workers' shift will return to the sanitation lot, where supervisors will provide materials for workers to use in cleaning off the graffiti. Because the length of time it takes to complete different routes varies, trucks will no longer be assigned to a specific route but will be rotated among the routes. Therefore, workers should no longer leave personal items in the trucks, as they will not necessarily be using the same truck each day as they did in the past.

- 307. a. Graffiti on city trucks is unsightly and gives city residents a poor impression of the Sanitation Department.
- b. The Sanitation Department greatly appreciates city workers' extra efforts in cleaning graffiti off the city trucks.
- c. Beginning next month, the Sanitation Department will institute a program intended to remove the graffiti from sanitation trucks.
- d. City workers should keep a sharp lookout for persons spray-painting graffiti on Sanitation Department trucks.

_____. One type of tickler system is the index-card file with 12 large dividers, one for each month, and 31 small dividers, one for each day. - 308. a. As busy secretaries, we cannot expect to remember all the details of our daily responsibilities without some help.
- b. At the beginning of the day, good secretaries review and organize the tasks they must attend to during that day.
- c. The word "tickler" perfectly describes the organizational system to which it refers.
- d. All secretaries need a good reminder system, sometimes known as a "tickler" system because it tickles the memory.

_____. Space shuttle astronauts, because they spend only about a week in space, undergo minimal wasting of bone and muscle. But when longer stays in microgravity or zero gravity are contemplated, as in the proposed space station or a two-year roundtrip voyage to Mars, these problems are of particular concern because they could become acute. Fortunately, studies show that muscle atrophy can be kept largely at bay with appropriate exercise. Unfortunately, bone loss caused by reduced gravity cannot.

- 309. a. Space flight, especially if it is prolonged, can be hazardous to the health of the astronauts.
- b. The tissues of human beings are ill-prepared for the stresses placed upon them by space flight.
- c. In space flight, astronauts must deal with two vexing physiological foes—muscle atrophy and bone loss.
- d. Travel on the space shuttle does less damage to an astronaut's bones and muscles than an extended stay on a space station.

_____. Rather, asthma is now understood to be a chronic inflammatory disorder of the airways—that is, inflammation makes the airways chronically sensitive. When these hyper-responsive airways are irritated, air flow is limited, and attacks of coughing, wheezing, chest tightness, and difficulty breathing occur.

- 310.
- a. No longer is asthma considered a condition with isolated, acute episodes of bronchospasm.
 - b. The true nature of asthma has only recently been understood.
 - c. Since the true character of asthma is now understood, there is more hope for a cure than there was in earlier times.

SET 32 (Answers begin on page 121.)

Answer questions 356–358 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Greyhound racing is the sixth most popular spectator sport in the United States. (2) Over the last decade, a growing number of racers have been adopted to live out retirement as household pets, once their racing career is over.

(3) Many people hesitate to adopt a retired racing greyhound because they think only very old dogs are available. (4) People also worry that the greyhound will be more nervous and active than other breeds and will need a large space to run. (5) _____. (6) In fact, racing greyhounds are put up for adoption at a young age; even champion racers, who have the longest careers, only work until they are about three-and-a-half years old. (7) Since greyhounds usually live to be 12–15 years old, their retirement is much longer than their racing careers. (8) Far from being nervous dogs, greyhounds have naturally sweet, mild dispositions, and, while they love to run, they are sprinters rather than distance runners and are sufficiently exercised with a few laps around a fenced-in backyard everyday.

(9) Greyhounds do not make good watchdogs, but they are very good with children, get along well with other dogs (and usually cats as well), and are very affectionate and loyal. (10) A retired racing greyhound is a wonderful pet for almost anyone.

SET 34 (Answers begin on page 123.)

Answer questions 375–377 on the basis of the following paragraph.

(1) By using tiny probes as neural prostheses, scientists may be able to restore nerve function in quadriplegics, make the blind see, or the deaf hear. (2) Thanks to advanced techniques, an implanted probe can stimulate individual neurons electrically or chemically and then record responses. (3) Preliminary results suggest that the microprobe telemetry systems can be permanently implanted and replace damaged or missing nerves.

(4) The tissue-compatible microprobes represent an advance over the typically aluminum wire electrodes used in studies of the cortex and other brain structures. (5) Previously, researchers data were accumulated using traditional electrodes, but there is a question of how much damage they cause to the nervous system. (6) Microprobes, since they are slightly thinner than a human hair, cause minimal damage and disruption of neurons when inserted into the brain because of their diminutive width.

(7) In addition to recording nervous system impulses, the microprobes have minuscule channels that open the way for delivery of drugs, cellular growth factors, neurotransmitters, and other neuroactive compounds to a single neuron or to groups of neurons. (8) The probes usually have up to four channels, each with its own recording/stimulating electrode.

Answer questions 381–383 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) In her lecture “Keeping Your Heart Healthy,” Dr. Miranda Woodhouse challenged Americans to join her in the fight to reduce the risks of heart disease. (2) Her plan includes four basic strategies meant to increase public awareness and prevent heart disease. (3) Eating a healthy diet that contains nine full servings of fruits and vegetables each day can help lower cholesterol levels. (4) More fruits and vegetables means less dairy and meat, which, in turn, means less cholesterol-boosting saturated fat. (5) Do not smoke. (6) Cigarette smoking which increases the risk of heart disease and when it is combined with other factors, the risk is even greater. (7) Smoking increases blood pressure, increases the tendency for blood to clot, decreases good cholesterol, and decreases tolerance for exercise. (8) Be aware of your blood pressure and cholesterol levels at all times. (9) Because there are often no symptoms, many people don’t even know that they have high blood pressure. (10) This is extremely dangerous since uncontrolled high blood pressure can lead to heart attack, kidney failure, and stroke. (11) Finally, relax and be happy. (12) Studies show that being constantly angry and depressed can increase your risk of heart disease so take a deep breath, smile, and focus on the positive things in life.

SET 35 (Answers begin on page 124.)

Answer questions 388–390 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) It is clear that the United States is a nation that needs to eat healthier and slim down. (2) One of the most important steps in the right direction would be for school cafeterias to provide healthy, low-fat options for students.

(3) School cafeterias, in an effort to provide food that is appetizing to young people, too often memorize fast-food menus, serving items such as burgers and fries, pizza, hot dogs, and fried chicken. (4) While these foods do provide some nutritional value, they are relatively high in fat. (5) According to nutritionist Elizabeth Warner, many of the lunch selections currently offered by school cafeterias could be made healthier with a few simple and inexpensive substitutions.

(6) “Veggie burgers offered alongside beef burgers would be a positive addition, says Warner. (7) “A salad bar would also serve the purpose of providing a healthy and satisfying meal. (8) And tasty grilled chicken sandwiches would be a far better option than fried chicken. (9) Additionally, the beverage case should be stocked with containers of low-fat milk.”

- 388. Which of the following changes is needed in the third paragraph?
- Part 7: Remove the quotation marks before A.
 - Part 6: Insert quotation marks after addition.

Answer questions 391–393 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) If you have little time to care for your garden, be sure to select hardy plants, such as phlox, comfrey, and peonies. (2) These will, with only a little care, keep the garden brilliant with color all through the growing season. (3) Sturdy sunflowers and hardy species of roses are also good selections. (4) As a thrifty gardener, you should leave part of the garden free for the planting of herbs such as lavender, sage, thyme, and parsley.

(5) If you have a moderate amount of time, growing vegetables and a garden culture of pears, apples, quinces, and other small fruits can be an interesting occupation, which amply rewards the care languished on it. (6) Even a small vegetable and fruit garden may yield radishes, celery, beans, and strawberries that will be delicious on the family table. (7) _____.

(8) When planting seeds for the vegetable garden, you should be sure that they receive the proper amount of moisture, that they are sown at the right season to receive the right degree of heat, and that the seed is placed near enough to the surface to allow the young plant to reach the light easily.

391. Which of the following editorial changes would best help to clarify the ideas in the first paragraph?

- a. Omit the phrase, with only a little care, from Part 2.
- b. Reverse the order of Parts 2 and 3.
- c. Add a sentence after Part 4 explaining why saving room for herbs is a sign of thrift in a gardener.
- d. Add a sentence about the ease of growing roses after Part 3.

Answer questions 394 and 395 on the basis of the following passage.

This selection is from Willa Cather’s short story, “Neighbor Rosicky.”

(1) On the day before Christmas the weather set in very cold; no snow, but a bitter, biting wind that whistled and sang over the flat land and lashed one’s face like fine wires. (2) There was baking going on in the Rosicky kitchen all day, and Rosicky sat inside, making over a coat that Albert had outgrown into an overcoat for John. (3) Mary’s big red geranium in bloom for Christmas, and a row of Jerusalem cherry trees, full of berries. (4) It was the first year she had ever grown these; Doctor Ed brung her the seeds from Omaha when he went to some medical convention. (5) They reminded Rosicky of plants he had seen in England; and all afternoon, as he stitched, he sat thinking about the two years in London, which his mind usually shrank from even after all this while.

Answer questions 396–398 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Augustus Saint-Gaudens was born March 1, 1848, in Dublin, Ireland, to Bernard Saint-Gaudens, a French shoemaker, and Mary McGuinness, his Irish wife. (2) Six months later, the family immigrated to New York City, where Augustus grew up. (3) Upon completion of school at age thirteen, he expressed strong interest in art as a career so his father apprenticed him to a cameo cutter. (4) While working days at his cameo lathe, Augustus also took art classes at the Cooper Union and the National Academy of Design.

(5) At 19, his apprenticeship completed, Augustus traveled to Paris where he studied under Francois Jouffry at the renown Ecole des Beaux-Arts. (6) In 1870, he left Paris for Rome, where for the next five years, he studies classical art and architecture, and worked on his first commissions. (7) In 1876, he received his first major commission—a monument to Civil War Admiral David Glasgow Farragut. (8) Unveiled in New York’s Madison Square in 1881, the monument was a tremendous success; its combination of realism and allegory was a departure from previous American sculpture. (9) Saint-Gaudens’ fame grew, and other commissions were quickly forthcoming.

Answer questions 402 and 403 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Choosing a doctor is an important decision. Here are some things you can do to make the best choice. (2) The single most important thing is to interview the doctors you are considering. (3) Ask questions about the practice, office hours, and how quick he or she responds to phone calls. (4) Pay attention to the doctor's communication skills and how comfortable you are with them. (5) The second thing you should do is to check the doctor’s credentials. (6) One way to do this is to ask your health care insurance company how they checked the doctor’s credentials before accepting him or her into their network. (7) The cost of healthcare insurance is quite high and many families have difficulty affording it. (8) Finally, spend a little time talking with the receptionist. (9) Keep in mind that this is the person you’ll come into contact with every time you call or come into the office. (10) If he or she is pleasant and efficient, it will certainly make your overall experience better.

Answer questions 404–406 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Being able to type good is no longer a requirement limited to secretaries and novelists; thanks to the computer, anyone who wants to enter the working world needs to be accustomed to a keyboard. (2) Just knowing your way around a keyboard does not mean that you can use one efficiently, though; while you may have progressed beyond the “hunt-and-peck” method, you may never have learned to type quickly and accurately. (3) Doing so is a skill that will not only ensure that you pass a typing proficiency exam, but one that is essential if you want to advance your career in any number of fields. (4) This chapter assures that you are familiar enough with a standard keyboard to be able to use it without looking at the keys, which is the first step in learning to type, and that you are aware of the proper fingering. (5) The following information will help you increase your speed and accuracy and to do our best when being tested on timed writing passages.

SET 37 (Answers begin on page 126.)

Answer questions 407 and 408 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) None of us knew my Uncle Elmer, not even my mother (he would have been ten years older than she) we had pictures of him in an ancient family album, a solemn, spindly baby, dressed in a white muslin shirt, ready for bed, or in a sailor suit, holding a little drum. (2) In one photograph, he stands in front of a tall chiffonier, which looms behind him, massive and shadowy, like one of the Fates in a greek play. (3) There weren't many such pictures, because photographs weren't easy to come by in those days, and in the ones we did have, my uncle had a formal posed look, as if, even then, he knew he was bound for some unique destiny. (4) It was the summer I turned thirteen that I found out what happened to him, the summer Sister Mattie Fisher, one of Grandma's evangelist friends, paid us a visit, sweeping in like a cleansing wind and telling the truth.

- 407. Which of the following changes needs to be made to the above passage?

Answer questions 409–411 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) O'Connell Street is the main thoroughfare of Dublin City. (2) Although it is not a particularly long street Dubliners will tell the visitor proudly that it is the widest street in all of Europe. (3) This claim usually meets with protests, especially from French tourists who claim The Champs Elysees of Paris as Europe's widest street. (4) But the witty Dubliner will not ensign bragging rights easily and will trump the French visitor with a fine distinction: The Champs Elysees is the widest boulevard, but O'Connell is the widest street.

(5) Divided by several important monuments running the length of its center, the street is named for Daniel O'Connell, an Irish patriot. (6) An impressive monument to him towers over the entrance of lower O'Connell Street and overlooking the Liffey River. (7) O'Connell stands high above the unhurried crowds of shoppers, business people, and students on a sturdy column; he is surrounded by four serene angels seated at each corner of the monument's base.

Answer questions 415–417 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) If your office job involves telephone work, than your voice may be the first contact a caller has to your company or organization. (2) For this reason, your telephone manners have to be impeccable. (3) Always answer the phone promptly, on the first or second ring, if possible. (4) Speak directly into the phone, neither too loudly nor too softly, in a pleasant, cheerful voice. (5) Vary the pitch of your voice, so that it will not sound monotonous or uninterested, and be sure to enunciate clearly. (6) After a short, friendly greeting, state your company or boss's name, then your own name.

(7) Always take messages carefully. (8) Fill out all pertinent blanks on the message pad sheet while you are still on the phone. (9) Always let the caller hang up first. (10) Do not depend in your memory for the spelling of a name or the last digit of a phone number, and be sure to write legibly. (11) When it is time to close a conversation, do so in a pleasant manner, and never hang up without saying good-bye. (12) While it is not an absolute rule, generally closing with Goodbye is more professional than bye-bye. (13) Verify the information by reading it back to the caller.

Answer questions 429 and 430 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Charles Darwin was born in 1809 at Shrewsbury England. (2) He was a biologist whose famous theory of evolution is important to philosophy for the effects it has had about the nature of man. (3) After many years of careful study, Darwin attempted to show that higher species had come into existence as a result of the gradual transformation of lower species; and that the process of transformation could be explained through the selective effect of the natural environment upon organisms. (4) He concluded that the principles of natural selection and survival of the fittest govern all life. (5) Darwin's explanation of these principles is that because of the food supply problem, the young born to any species compete for survival. (6) Those young that survive to produce the next generation tend to embody favorable natural changes which are then passed on by heredity. (7) His major work that contained these theories is On the Origin of the Species written in 1859. Many religious opponents condemned this work.

- 429. Which of the following corrections should be made in punctuation?
- Part 1: Insert a comma after Shrewsbury.
 - Part 2: Insert quotation marks around nature of man.

Answer questions 433–435 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Cuttlefish are very intriguing little animals. (2) The cuttlefish resembles a rather large squid and is, like the octopus, a member of the order of cephalopods. (3) Although they are not considered the most highly evolved of the cephalopods, cuttlefish are extremely intelligent. (4) _____. (5) While observing them, it is hard to tell who is doing the watching, you or the cuttlefish. (6) Since the eye of the cuttlefish is very similar in structure to the human eye, cuttlefish can give you the impression that you are looking into the eyes of a wizard who has metamorphosed himself into a squid with very human eyes.

(7) Cuttlefish are also highly mobile and fast creatures. (8) They come equipped with a small jet located just below the tentacles that can expel water to help them move. (9) For navigation, ribbons of flexible fin on each side of the body allow cuttlefish to Hoover, move, stop, and start.

- 433. Which of the following sentences, if inserted into the blank numbered 4, would be most consistent with the paragraph’s development and tone?
- Curious and friendly, cuttlefish tend, in the wild, to hover near a diver so they can get a good look, and in captivity, when a researcher slips a hand into the tanks, cuttlefish tend to grasp it with their tentacles in a hearty but gentle handshake.
 - The cuttlefish can be cooked and eaten like its less tender relatives the squid and octopus, but must still be tenderized before cooking in order not to be exceedingly chewy.
 - Cuttlefish are hunted as food not only by many sea creatures, but also by people; they are delicious when properly cooked.
 - Cuttlefish do not have an exoskeleton; instead their skin is covered with chromatophors.
- 434. Which of the following numbered parts should be revised to reduce its unnecessary repetition?

SET 40 (Answers begin on page 129.)

Answer questions 436–438 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) As soon as she sat down on the airplane, Rachel almost began to regret telling the travel agent that she wanted an exotic and romantic vacation; after sifting through a stack of brochures, the agent and her decided the most exotic vacation she could afford was a week in Rio. (2) As the plane hurtled toward Rio de Janeiro, she read the information on Carnival that was in the pocket of the seat in front of hers. (3) The very definition made her shiver: “from the Latin carnavale, meaning a farewell to the flesh.” (4) She was searching for excitement, but had no intention of bidding her skin good-bye. (5) “Carnival,” the brochure informed her, originated in Europe in the Middle Ages and served as a break from the requirements of daily life and society. (6) Most of all, it allowed the hard-working and desperately poor serfs the opportunity to ridicule their wealthy and normally humorless masters.” (7) Rachel, a middle manager in a computer firm, wasn’t entirely sure whether she was a serf or a master. (8) Should she be making fun, or would others be mocking her? (9) She was strangely relieved when the plane landed, as though her fate were decided.

- 436. Which of the following changes needs to be made to the above passage?
- Part 2: Insert the before Carnival.
 - Part 3: Italicize carnavale.

Answer questions 439–441 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) A metaphor is a poetic device that deals with comparison. (2) It compares similar qualities of two dissimilar objects. (3) With a simple metaphor, one object becomes the other: Love is a rose. Although this doesn't sound like a particularly rich image, a metaphor can communicate so much about a particular image, that poets utilize them more than any other type of figurative language. (4) The reason for this is that a poet composes poetry to express emotional experiences. (5) Succinctly, what the poet imagines love to be may or may not be our perception of love. (6) Therefore, the poet's job is to enable us to experience it and feel it the same way. (7) You should be able to nod in agreement and say, "Yes, that's it! (8) I understand precisely where this guy is coming from."

- 439. The tone of this passage is very formal; the last sentence is not. Which of the following would be more consistent with the tone of the passage?
- This guy is right on.
 - I can relate to the poet's experience.
 - I know this feeling.
 - This poem gets right to the point.

SET 41 (Answers begin on page 130.)

Answer questions 445–447 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Typically people think of genius, whether it manifests in Mozart composing symphonies at age five or Einstein’s discovery of relativity, as having quality not just of the divine, but also of the eccentric. (2) People see genius as a “good” abnormality; moreover, they think of genius as a completely unpredictable abnormality. (3) Until recently, psychologists regarded the quirks of genius as too erratic to describe intelligibly; however, Anna Findley’s groundbreaking study uncovers predictable patterns in the biographies of geniuses. (4) Despite the regularity of these patterns, they could still support the common belief that there is a kind of supernatural intervention in the lives of unusually talented men and women. (5) _____. (6) For example, Findley shows that all geniuses experience three intensely productive periods in their lives, one of which always occurs shortly before their deaths; this is true whether the genius lives to nineteen or ninety.

- 445. Which of the following sentences, if inserted in the blank numbered Part 5, would best focus the main idea of the passage?

- a. These patterns are normal in the lives of all geniuses.
- b. Eerily, the patterns themselves seem to be determined by predestination rather than mundane habit.
- c. No matter how much scientific evidence the general public is presented with, people still like to think of genius as unexplainable.
- d. Since people think of genius as a “good” abnormality, they do not really care what causes it.

- 446. Which of the following changes needs to be made to the passage?

- a. Part 1: Change Mozart to Mozart’s.
- b. Part 3: Change too to to.
- c. Part 4: Change there to their.
- d. Part 6: Change geniuses to geniuses’.

- b. Part 3
- c. Part 4
- d. Part 6

Answer questions 448–450 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) The English-language premiere of Samuel Beckett’s play Waiting for Godot took place in London in August 1955. (2) Godot is an avant-garde play with only five characters (not including Mr. Godot, who never arrives) and a minimal setting—one rock and one bare tree. (3) The play has two acts, the second act repeating what little action occurs in the first with few changes: the tree, for instance, acquires one leaf. (4) Famously, the critic Vivian Mercer has described Godot as “a play in which nothing happens twice.” (5) Opening night critics and playgoers, greeted the play with bafflement and derision. (6) Beckett’s play managed to free the theater from the grasp of detailed naturalism. (7) The line, “Nothing happens, nobody comes, nobody goes. It’s awful,” was met by a loud rejoinder of “Hear! Hear!” from an audience member. (8) Despite the bad notices, director Peter Hall believed so passionately in the play that his fervor convinced the backers to refrain from closing the play at least until the Sunday reviews were published. (9) Harold Hobson’s review in The Sunday Times managed to save the play, for Hobson had the vision to recognize the play for what history has proven it to be—a revolutionary moment in theater.

- 448. Which of the following editorial changes should be made in order to improve the focus and flow of the passage?
- Reverse the order of Parts 6 and 7.
 - Part 3: Remove the phrase, the tree, for instance, acquires one leaf.

 - Part 4
 - Part 5
 - Part 9

Answer questions 451–452 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) The Woodstock Music and Art Fair—better known to its participants and to history simply as “Woodstock”—should have been a colossal failure. (2) Just a month prior to its August 15, 1969 opening the fair’s organizers were informed by the council of Wallkill, New York, that permission to hold the festival was withdrawn. (3) Amazingly, not only was a new site found, but word got out to the public of the fair’s new location. (4) At the new site, fences that were supposed to facilitate ticket collection never materialized, all attempts at gathering tickets were abandoned. (5) Crowd estimates of 30,000 kept rising; by the end of the three days, some estimated the crowd at 500,000. (6) And then, on opening night, it began to rain. (7) Off and on, throughout all three days, huge summer storms rolled over the gathering. (8) In spite of these problems, most people think of Woodstock not only as a fond memory but as the defining moment for an entire generation.

Answer questions 465–467 on the basis of the following passage.

(1) Heat exhaustion, generally characterized by clammy skin, fatigue, nausea, dizziness, profuse perspiration, and sometimes fainting, resulting from an inadequate intake of water and the loss of fluids. (2) First aid treatment for this condition includes having the victim lie down, raising the feet 8 to 12 inches, applying cool, wet cloths to the skin, and giving the victim sips of salt water (1 teaspoon per glass, half a glass every 15 minutes) over the period of an hour. (3) _____.

(4) Heat stroke is much more serious; it is an immediate life-threatening condition. (5) The characteristics of heat stroke are a high body temperature (which may reach 106° F or more); a rapid pulse; hot, dry skin; and a blocked sweating mechanism. (6) Victims of this condition may be unconscious, and first aid measures should be directed at cooling the body quickly. (7) Heat stroke often occurs among poor people in urban areas. (8) The victim should be placed in a tub of cold water or repeatedly sponged with cool water until his or her temperature is lowered sufficiently. (9) Fans or air conditioners will also help with the cooling process. (10) Care should be taken, however, not to chill the victim too much once his or her temperature is below 102° F.

- 465. Which of the following sentences, if inserted into the blank numbered Part 3 in the passage, would best aid the transition of thought between the first and second paragraphs?

Essay Questions

The sets in this final section provide 26 essay-writing topics. These topics are representative of the kinds of writing prompts that you might find on an essay-writing test. As you plan and write practice essays, first choose the topics that are of interest to you or the topics that you know something about. When you begin to feel comfortable writing a 30-minute essay on a familiar subject, try writing about the topics that are less familiar—just to stretch your writing comfort zone.

Starting on page 132 of this book, in the Answers section, you will find a Scoring Guide. This guide shows a 6-point scale, with 6 being an excellent essay and 1 being a poor essay. Guides like these are often used by teachers and evaluators of standardized writing tests to score your essay. You can use this guide to evaluate your own essays, or you can give the guide and your essay to a friend or teacher for comments. Often, a third party is much better at evaluating your writing than you are, yourself.

Also in the Answers section, you will find sample essays for the first six topics in this section (Sets 44–46). These essays will show you how the scoring guide is used to evaluate particular essays.

Generally, you should try for a score of 4 or above for your essays. If your essay falls below a score of 4, revise your work to see if you can raise it to a 5- or a 6-level essay, and show the new version to your evaluator.

SET 44 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133, sample essays start on page 133.)

Carefully read the essay-writing topics that follow. Choose one topic on which to write. Then, plan and write an essay that addresses all points in the topic you have chosen.

476. Should public school students be required to wear uniforms? Supporters argue that, among other things, uniforms improve discipline and build a strong sense of community and identity. On the other hand, opponents believe that uniforms limit students’ freedom of expression and their development as individuals.

Write an essay in which you take a position on whether or not public school students should be required to wear uniforms to school. Be sure to support your position with logical arguments and specific examples.

477. Recently, American students are said to have fallen behind in the sciences, and some educators believe it is because American teachers are conducting science classes ineffectively.

Write an essay in which you suggest ways science classes could be conducted so as to more effectively challenge high school and college students.

SET 45 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133, sample essays start on page 136.)

Make sure that your essays are well organized and that you support each central argument with concrete examples. Allow about 30 minutes for each essay.

478. In a review of Don DeLillo’s novel White Noise, Jayne Anne Phillips writes that the characters are people “sleepwalking through a world where ‘Coke is It!’ and the TV is always on.” On the other hand, television is said by some to have brought the world to people who would not have seen much of it otherwise. It has made possible a “global village.”

Write an essay in which you express your opinion of the effect of television on individuals or on nations. Include specific details from personal experience to back up your assertions.

479. Bob Maynard has said that “Problems are opportunities in disguise.”

Write an essay describing a time in your life when a problem became an opportunity. How did you transform the situation? Explain what you did to turn the problem into an opportunity, and explain how others can benefit from your experience.

SET 46 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133, sample essays start on page 139.)

When you write an essay under testing conditions, you should plan on using about the first one-fourth to one-third of the time you are allotted just for planning. Jot down notes about what you want to say about the topic, and then find a good way to organize your ideas.

480. In his play, The Admirable Crichton, J.M. Barrie wrote, “Courage is the thing. All goes if courage goes.”

Write an essay about a time in your life when you had the courage to do something, face something difficult, or when you feel you fell short. What did you learn from the experience?

481. Some people say that writing can’t be taught. Educators debate the subject every day, while the teachers in the trenches keep trying.

Write an essay in which you take a position about the matter. You may discuss any kind of writing, from basic composition to fiction. Be sure to back up your opinion with concrete examples and specific details.

SET 47 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

The most important step in writing an essay is to read the topic carefully. Make sure you understand the question. If you have a choice of topics, choose the one you understand fully.

482. Dorothy Fosdick once said, “Fear is a basic emotion, part of our native equipment, and like all normal emotions has a positive function to perform. Comforting formulas for getting rid of anxiety may be just the wrong thing. Books about peace of mind can be bad medicine. To be afraid when one should be afraid is good sense.”

Write an essay in which you express your agreement or disagreement with Fosdick’s assertion. Support your opinion with specific examples.

483. In the past several years, many state governments have permitted gambling by actually sponsoring lotteries, to increase state revenues and keep taxes down. Proponents of gambling praise the huge revenues gambling generates. Opponents counter that gambling hurts those who can least afford it, and increased availability of gamblers leads to an increase in the number of gamblers who need treatment.

Write an essay in which you take a position on the issue of state-sponsored gambling. Be sure to support your view with logical arguments and specific examples.

ESSAY QUESTIONS

SET 48 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

Take just 30 minutes to plan and write your essay. This is good practice for writing under timed conditions, as you have to do in a test.

484. The Western view of human rights promotes individual rights. The Eastern view argues that the good of the whole country or people is more important than the rights of individuals.

Write an essay in which you take a position on this debate. The Western view would be that individuals always have the right to express their opinions. The Eastern view would hold that individual expression must sometimes be fettered in order to promote harmony in a given society. Be sure to support your discussion with specific examples and logical arguments.

485. Barbara Tuchman once noted, “Every successful revolution puts on in time the robe of the tyrant it has deposed.”

Write an essay in which you either agree or disagree with her observation. Support your opinion with specific examples.

SET 49 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

When planning your essay, use an outline, a brainstorming list, a topic map, or any other method that works for you to jot down your ideas and organize them logically.

486. Gossip is fun, but if it is malicious, it can be hurtful.

Have you ever been the victim of gossip? Have you ever passed on gossip that you later found was untrue? How do you think the victim of malicious gossip should react or respond? What advice would you give to such a victim?

487. In 1997, scientists in Scotland successfully cloned a sheep. This event added to the debate over human cloning. Proponents of a ban on human cloning are concerned about issues such as genetic selection. Opponents of a ban point out that cloning could lead to significant medical advances.

Write an essay in which you take a position on the issue of human cloning. Be sure to support your view with logical arguments and specific examples.

SET 50 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

When you write, make sure the first paragraph of your essay includes a thesis statement, a sentence that states the main idea of your essay.

- 488. Law enforcement agencies use a tool called profiling in certain situations. Profiling is the practice of outlining the looks and behavior of the type of person who is more likely than others to commit a particular crime. For example, if a person buys an airline ticket with cash, travels with no luggage, and returns the same day, they fit the profile for a drug courier. Opponents of profiling argue that it has the potential to unfairly target citizens based on their appearance. Proponents argue that law enforcement must take such shortcuts in order to effectively fight crime.

Write an essay in which you take a position on this debate. Be sure to use logical reasoning and be sure to support your view with specific examples.

- 489. Is it ever all right to lie? Some people say that “little white lies” are acceptable to spare someone else’s feelings. Other people believe it is never right to lie, that telling a few little lies leads to telling more and bigger lies.

Which position do you hold? Is it possible to never lie? Is it possible to tell just the right amount of lies? Use examples to illustrate your position.

SET 51 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

There’s no specific number of paragraphs you have to have in an essay, but it would be difficult, to write a good essay on any topic in fewer than three paragraphs. Most good essays will have four to seven paragraphs.

- 490. The United States owes the United Nations several million dollars in back-dues and other fees. Opponents of paying this debt point to an inefficient bureaucracy at the United Nations and the tendency of the United Nations to support positions that are not in the United States’ best interests. Proponents of paying this debt highlight a growing tendency toward internationalism and the fact that the United States depends on the United Nations for support.

Write an essay outlining why the United States should pay its United Nations debt or why it should not. Support your position with examples and logical arguments.

- 491. As juvenile crime increases, so do the calls for stricter punishments for juvenile offenders. One suggestion is to lower the age at which a juvenile may be tried as an adult. Supporters of this view believe that young people are committing crimes at younger and younger ages, and the crimes they are committing are becoming more and more heinous. Opponents of this view point to the success of juvenile crime prevention programs, such as teen centers and midnight basketball.

Write an essay in which you either defend or criticize the suggestion that juvenile offenders should be charged as adults at younger ages. Include examples and logical reasoning to support your position.

SET 52 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

The essays in this set and the next few contain more personal topics—ones that ask you to reflect on a specific event in your life or on your personality.

- 492. Phyliss Bottome has said, “There are two ways of meeting difficulties. You alter the difficulties or you alter yourself to meet them.”

Write about a time in which you attempted to alter a difficult situation, or decided to alter yourself. Were you successful? Are you pleased with the choice you made? Whichever you chose to alter, would it have been easier to alter the other? Would it have been better?

- 493. Bella Lewitzky once said, “To move freely you must be deeply rooted.”

Write an essay in which you first state what you interpret this statement to mean (there is no right or wrong interpretation), then (using your own interpretation) agree or disagree with it. Support your opinion with specific examples and logical reasoning.

SET 53 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

Each body paragraph of your essay should have a topic sentence that forecasts the main idea of that paragraph. Make sure your topic sentences are connected to your thesis statement in order to write a unified essay.

- 494. Most people have faced a situation—perhaps in a class, an organization, or just with a group of friends—in which they held a strong, but unpopular, opinion.

Write about a time when you were in this circumstance. Did you speak up? Did you keep quiet? Why do you think you made the choice you did?

- 495. Do you consider yourself adventurous, a risk-taker?

Write about a time in which you contemplated an undertaking which others considered dangerous. Did you do it? Why? If you did not do it, why not? Do you have regrets? The danger involved need not have been physical, although it could have been.

SET 54 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

It's always important to explain yourself fully. How will the reader understand the event you're describing if you don't "show all"? In both personal and persuasive writing, it's important to include lots of details, images, and explanations to support your main idea.

- 496. Nadine Stair said, "If I had my life to live over again, I'd dare to make more mistakes next time."

Write an essay in which you agree or disagree with this assessment, using your own life as a touchstone. Why do you agree or disagree? How might your life have been different if you had dared to make more mistakes?

- 497. In the 1960s and 1970s, women were demanding the right to attend previously all-male educational institutions. Having won that right, some women are now reconsidering. Citing studies that indicate girls perform better in all-girl schools than in coed schools, some women are calling for the establishment of single-sex educational institutions.

Write an essay in which you take a position on the issue of single-sex schools. Be sure to include specific examples and solid reasoning in your opinion.

SET 55 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

Often the best way to organize a personal essay is chronologically, in time order. But you should still make sure you have a thesis statement that responds to the question, and that your whole essay is related to your thesis statement.

- 498. Susanne Curchod Necker said, "Worship your heroes from afar; contact withers them."

Do you agree? Write about a time when you made contact with a hero. Were you disappointed with the experience or not? Or, perhaps someone once thought of you as a hero. Did they feel the same way after they got close to you? Did closeness make the relationship better or worse?

- 499. Most of us have been in a situation, perhaps at work or at school, in which we felt we were being treated unfairly.

Write about a time when you were treated unfairly. How did you react? What did you do or say about the treatment? If you had it to do over again, would you do something differently?

SET 56 (Scoring guide on pages 132–133.)

Whether you're writing a personal essay or a persuasive one, make sure you stick to the topic you are given.

500. An old cliché says, "You can't fight city hall."

Do you believe this is true? What advice would you give someone who wanted to convince a city council that a stoplight should be installed at a particular corner? Perhaps you can write about a time in which you tried to change or enact a law, or perhaps a regulation at school or work. Were you successful? Why or why not?

501. Advances in genetic testing now allow scientists to identify people whose genetic background makes them greater risks for certain diseases. A genetic predisposition to a certain disease, however, does not guarantee that a patient will contract that disease. Environmental factors, such as diet, exercise, and smoking also play a role. Insurance companies want to have access to genetic information in order to help keep their costs down. Opponents feel that insurance companies will misuse such information, by unfairly denying people coverage.

Write an essay in which you take a position on providing genetic testing information to insurance companies. Be sure to support your argument with specific examples and logical reasoning.

Answers

Section 1: Mechanics

SET 1 (Page 3)

1. b. A title, such as Dr., requires a capital.
2. d. Nationalities and languages require capitals.
3. a. Jr. is a kind of title and therefore takes a capital.
4. b. The first letter of a direct quotation takes a capital.
5. e. Capitalization is correct.
6. a. All words in the proper name of a place require capitals.
7. b. Proper names require capitals.
8. c. Movie titles are capitalized.

SET 2 (Page 4)

9. d. There should be quotation marks before the word Coach to set off the dialogue.
10. d. Commas set off nonrestrictive appositives, phrases that say the same thing as the previous phrase, in different words. (A comma should be placed after Patricia.)
11. a. A colon can go before a list. (Place a colon after the word flowers.)
12. a. A semicolon can be used to separate two main clauses, which could each stand alone as complete sentences.
13. c. A dash can be used to set off a parenthetical element, for emphasis. (Place another dash after the word senior.)
14. a. The possessive Kim's requires an apostrophe.
15. e. This sentence is punctuated correctly.
16. b. Commas set off parenthetical elements and always go inside the quotation marks in a line of dialogue. (Place a comma after the word remember.)

- 17. d. Commas set off a word or phrase that describes the subject but does not alter the meaning of the entire sentence. (Place a comma after the word Larkin.)
- 18. c. A semicolon can be used to separate two main clauses, which could each stand alone as complete sentences. (Place the semicolon after the word treadmill.)

SET 3 (Page 5)

- 19. b. The comma separates the main clause from the long, descriptive subordinate clause.
- 20. d. The semicolon can be used to separate two main clauses, which could each stand alone as complete sentences.
- 21. a. The quotation is a question, and the tag asked Timothy ends the sentence.
- 22. e. The sentence is punctuated correctly.
- 23. b. The word student's is possessive and needs an apostrophe.
- 24. e. The sentence does not require any punctuation other than the period at the end.
- 25. c. This is a declarative sentence; it asks an indirect question, so a question mark should not be used. Also, the comma is unnecessary.
- 26. e. The sentence is punctuated correctly.
- 27. a. The phrase a root vegetable is a nonessential element in the sentence and needs to be set off with commas.
- 28. d. Commas separate dates and addresses.
- 33. c. Cape Cod is a proper noun, and both words should be capitalized.
- 34. a. Since this is a declarative sentence, the question mark should be replaced with a period.
- 35. b. Uncle is not used as a proper noun and should not be capitalized.
- 36. a. Grandma is used as a proper name and should be capitalized.
- 37. b. A colon should not be used between a verb and its objects.
- 38. a. There should be an apostrophe in the word else's, which is possessive.
- 39. c. The commas are missing from this series of adjectives.
- 40. b. The quotation mark should appear on the outside of the exclamation point: "Don't run!"
- 41. c. Polio and smallpox should not be capitalized. Diseases are not capitalized unless a proper noun is part of the name.
- 42. a. Ocean should be capitalized.
- 43. c. To set off the dialogue, there should be quotation marks before the word I'll.
- 44. c. Mayor should not be capitalized because it does not refer to a particular mayor.
- 45. b. A semicolon is not used between a dependent and an independent clause. Use a comma.
- 46. b. Veterinarian is not a proper noun and should not be capitalized.
- 47. c. The word Why, which begins the quotation, should be capitalized.
- 48. b. World War is a proper noun and should be capitalized.
- 49. a. The phrase like many other viruses should be set off by commas because it is a nonessential element in the sentence.
- 50. a. Industrial Revolution should be capitalized.
- 51. a. The commas in this sentence should be deleted. Commas are not used in a series when the series is already linked by conjunctions.

SET 4 (Page 6)

- 29. a. Winter should not be capitalized.
- 30. c. There should not be an apostrophe after the word girls.
- 31. a. The comma is unnecessary and should be deleted.
- 32. b. Mayor should be capitalized because it refers to a particular mayor.

- 52. a. The names of centuries are not capitalized.
53. c. This sentence asks a question and should end with a question mark.

SET 5 (Page 8)

- 54. c. Commas are used to set off a word or phrase that describes the subject but does not alter the meaning of the entire sentence.
55. e. The dash is used to set off parenthetical elements, for emphasis.
56. a. The comma is used after an introductory element.
57. b. The comma separates the main clause from the descriptive subordinate clause.
58. c. Titles require capitals.
59. d. First word of salutations, titles, and proper names all take capitals; a colon follows the salutation in a business letter.
60. d. Commas set off parenthetical elements.
61. a. A comma goes before and when and links two main clauses.

Section 2: Sentence StructureSET 6 (Page 12)

- 62. d. Although means “despite the fact that” or “even though.” Even though Sarah drives to the cabin all the time, she still gets nervous. The other choices do not convey this meaning.
63. a. Therefore best completes the sentence’s meaning; it creates a cause and effect relationship between how Lila is feeling (the cause) and her decision to stay home from work (the effect).
64. b. While suggests that two things are happening simultaneously; it is the only logical choice. Choice a implies that Sam could control when the doctor called him in. Choices c and d are unclear.
65. c. The sentence requires a condition—Ruby likes blueberry pie on one condition: freshly picked blueberries. Choice b can be ruled out because blueberry pie is not always made with freshly picked blueberries. Choices a and d result in unclear sentences.
66. a. However indicates an impending contradiction; it is the best choice because the two clauses compare musical tastes. In this case, the comparison contrasts Mitchell’s preference to Greg’s.
67. d. If you rearrange the sentence, it would read: If you sign up this week, you will receive a low annual fee and a 20% discount. In addition means and; it is the best choice. Choices a, b, and c result in an awkward construction.
68. b. The two clauses make a reference to time—more specifically, to two different times. Choice b is the only logical response.
69. d. The golden retriever is never outside without a leash because the neighbor is afraid of dogs; one is the effect of the other. Consequently means following as an effect or as a result. This is the best choice.
70. a. This sentence speculates that quilts were made from fabrics taken from somewhere. Only from completes this idea.
71. d. This is the only choice that results in a complete and logical sentence. Choice a is illogical; choices b and c result in sentence fragments.
72. d. The conditional tense, would have heard, is the only one that logically fits with the second clause of the sentence.
73. c. The Beatles songs specifically named were pulled from a pool of titles. Only Among suggests the existence of many other things, in this case songs.

SET 7 (Page 14)

- 74. c. Even though is the most logical subordinating phrase, showing a contrast. The other choices are not only illogical but ungrammatical.
- 75. b. In this choice, the subordinate clause makes sense. Choice b is also the least wordy of the choices. In choices a and d, the subordinators are illogical. Choice c contains a misplaced modifier (Plato believed; Plato's idea could not believe).
- 76. a. The word despite establishes a logical connection between the main and subordinate clauses. Whereupon and so that (choices b and c) make no sense. Choice d is both illogical and ungrammatical.
- 77. c. The subordinator because in choice c establishes the logical causal relationship between subordinate and main clause; choices a and b do not make sense. Choice d has faulty construction.
- 78. b. Whereas (in choice b) is the logical subordinator, establishing contrast. The other answer choices make no sense.
- 79. b. The subordinators after (choice a), whereupon (choice c), and unless (choice d) do not make sense. Although the word but (choice b) can be used as a coordinating conjunction, here it is a subordinator, logically connecting subordinate and main clause.
- 80. c. The subordinator although shows a logical contrasting relationship between subordinate and main clause. The other choices do not make sense.
- 81. b. The subordinator so (choice b) establishes the correct causal relationship between main and subordinate clause. The other subordinators do not point to cause.

- 82. d. The subordinator yet establishes a contrasting relationship between the main and subordinate clauses. The other choices do not establish a logical relationship.
- 83. a. The subordinator whereas (choice a) correctly establishes a contrast between subordinate and main clause. The other choices point to an illogical causal relationship.
- 84. c. Choice a contains a misplaced modifier. Choice b is a run-on sentence. Choice d establishes a faulty causal relationship between main and subordinate clauses. Choice c correctly states a simple fact.

SET 8 (Page 17)

- 85. c. The conjunction but sets the reader up for a contrast or opposite: TV passive . . . (but) computer game active.
- 86. b. The conjunction so indicates a causal relationship: Socrates taught [something obviously controversial], . . . so he was . . . both loved and . . . hated. Choice c is incorrect because it has a misplaced modifier.
- 87. a. The conjunction for in this sentence means because and prepares the reader for a logical causal relationship. Choice d is a run-on sentence.
- 88. a. The conjunction so indicates that there is a causal relationship between the two main clauses.
- 89. d. The conjunction yet prepares the reader for a contrast: respected, yet . . . imprisoned. Choice b is wrong because it is unclear.
- 90. c. In this sentence, the conjunction for means because and prepares the reader for a logical causal relationship: new shoes . . . (for) Donnie will be upset if . . . flip-flops.

- 91. c. The conjunction so indicates a logical causal relationship between the first main clause and the second: loaded with money, (so) she can afford.
- 92. b. The conjunction but sets the reader up for an opposite or contrast: it is possible . . . (but) unlikely. Choices c and d make no sense.
- 93. c. The word Unless sets up the causal relationship between the two clauses in the sentence. The other choices are illogical.
- 94. a. The subordinating conjunction Although signals an impending contradiction; it makes the most sense. The other choices do not make sense.
- 95. d. The subordinator but contrasts the main clause and subordinate clause in a logical way. Choices a, b, and c do not make sense.
- 96. d. Choice d is the most economical of the choices and makes the most sense.
- SET 9 (Page 19)
- 97. d. Because establishes the causal relationship between the woman not responding and everyone's assumption that she would not attend.
- 98. b. The transitional word whereas correctly establishes a contrast between the speaker's opinion of the restaurant and the opinion of her friends.
- 99. c. The transitional word although correctly establishes a contrast between Elizabeth's athletic ability and her inability to swim or ride a bike, which supposedly accompanies athleticism.
- 100. c. The conjunctive adverb therefore establishes the causal relationship between the number of babies in the neighborhood and the neighborhood's nickname.
- 101. a. The transitional word however correctly establishes a contrast between the large number of stores in the shopping mall and the absence of a pet shop.
- 102. a. The transitional word furthermore correctly indicates the addition of one negative trait to another. Choice d is incorrect because not everyone who is unreliable has a difficult personality.
- 103. a. The conjunction but means on the contrary, and indicates that the two negatives in the first main clause will be followed by their opposite or opposites in the second: Never eat candy or ice cream . . . (but) do drink soda.
- 104. c. The conjunction but indicates that the first main clause will be followed by something that indicates an opposite or contrast: is definitely unpleasant . . . (but) is not as unpleasant as.
- 105. d. The conjunction so correctly indicates the causality: The subject of the sentence always has a big party because she loves celebrating her birthday. Choice a indicates causality but is ungrammatical.
- 106. b. The conjunction yet prepares the reader for a contrast: is not usually . . . (yet) it can. Choice c is unclear.
- 107. d. The conjunction and in this sentence indicates also. Choice a is wrong because it is a sentence fragment. Choice b makes no sense; choice c prepares the reader for a contrast but fails to deliver: narcolepsy is occurs in both main clauses.
- 108. b. The conjunction yet prepares the reader for a contrast: much interest throughout the ages . . . (yet) scientific study . . . is . . . new. Choices a and c are incomplete sentences.

SET 10 (Page 21)

- 109. a. Correct as is. This sentence requires the same form (parallelism) between the verbs welcome and have, and choice a is the only sentence that does this (welcoming and having).
- 110. c. This choice is the only one that does not contain repetition or wordiness. In choices a and d, the words wide, variety, and different mean the same thing, and in choice e, many and numerous mean the same thing. Choice b is grammatically incorrect.
- 111. b. This choice is correctly subordinated and is logical.
- 112. a. Correct as is. This is the only choice that does not have a faulty subordination. The first part of the sentence is an independent clause; the second part is a dependent clause. Choice a is correct because the dependent clause is correctly introduced by the relative pronoun which.
- 113. e. This is the only choice that does not contain repetition or wordiness. In choices a, c, and d, well known, prominent, famous, and renown mean the same thing; in choice b, a painter obviously lived and painted.
- 114. c. This choice is constructed so that the sentence is logical and unambiguous. The opening phrase Having missed class several times should be completed by a noun that indicates who missed class.
- 115. a. Correct as is. This is the only choice that does not contain repetition or wordiness. In choice b diligent and careful mean the same thing; in choice c, reviewing and checking mean the same thing; in choice d, workers and employees mean the same thing; and in choice e, daily and every day mean the same thing.
- 116. d. The word beside means at the side of; the word besides means other than or together with.
- 117. d. The comparison in this sentence between the United States and Japan requires as well as. Choice d does this while at the same time creating a clear and logical sentence.
- 118. a. Correct as is. A comma is needed before a coordinating conjunction and after a subordinating clause; choice a is the only one that does both.
- 119. d. In this complex sentence, choice d is the only choice that results in a complete sentence. The other choices are sentence fragments.

SET 11 (Page 24)

- 120. b. This is the only choice in which the sentence construction is clear and unambiguous. In choices a and c, the sentence reads as though the ingredients were making the torte. In choice e, no one is making the torte. Choice d is incorrect because there is a shift in tense from present (making) to past perfect (should have used).
- 121. a. Correct as is. This sentence requires that the comparison between culture and biology be logical and clear. Choice b is wrong because the use of the preposition with does not observe standard usage conventions. The phrase somewhat better in choice c makes no sense. Choices d and e result in an unclear comparison.
- 122. e. This is the only choice that does not contain excessive wordiness or a redundancy. In choice a, the phrase the fifth of five is redundant. Choices b, c, and d also repeats five and fifth.
- 123. e. The opening phrase, An American poet of the nineteenth century, should modify a noun that identifies the poet. Only choice e does this. In choices a, b, and c, either collection or Leaves of Grass is illogically credited with being the poet. Choice d is incorrect because the subject of the resulting dependent clause, poems, would not agree with its verb, celebrates.

- 124. d. Choice d is correctly punctuated with a semicolon between two independent clauses, and there is no shift in person. Choices a, b, and e are incorrect because the sentence shifts from the first person (We) to the second person (you). Choice c uses a semicolon when no punctuation is necessary.
- 125. b. In this sentence Contrary to, which means a viewpoint that is opposite to or in conflict with another viewpoint, is used correctly. In choice a, in is inappropriately used with opposite. Similarly, choices c, d, and e do not use standard phrasing.
- 126. a. Correct as is. Choices b and e are wordy while choices c and d are awkward.
- 127. c. Choices a, b, and e are awkward and wordy. Choice d is unclear and ambiguous; the use of the preposition to distorts the meaning of the sentence.
- 128. d. This choice is clear, logical, and unambiguous and does not use extraneous words. Choice a is redundant: until the time when. Choice b is also redundant (since when) and uses extraneous words. The redundancy in choice c is to kill and stop. In choice e, the phrase up to when is awkward, and the word its has an unclear referent.
- 129. a. When constructing sentences, unnecessary shifts in verb tenses should be avoided. Choice a is best because all three verbs in the sentence indicate that the action occurred in the past (had been covering, became, and was called). In choice b, there is a shift to the present (becomes). Choice c begins in the present (is covering, becomes), then shifts to the past (called). Choice d makes two tense shifts, and choice e shifts once, from present to past tense.
- 130. d. This is the only choice that is both grammatically and logically correct. Choice a has a shift in construction; there are two subjects that mean the same thing (Donald Trump and he). Choice b has a modifier problem; the sentence implies that Donald Trump built a billion-dollar empire because he was the son of a real estate developer. Choice c, though constructed differently, results in the same faulty logic. Choice e creates faulty subordination.
- 131. e. The correct punctuation between two independent clauses is a semicolon. Choice a is wrong because it creates a comma splice. Choice c creates a sentence fragment. Choices b and d create faulty subordination.
- 132. b. This is the correct choice because it is the only one that is a complete sentence.
- 133. e. This is the correct choice because the sentence is complete, logical, and unambiguous.
- 134. b. This is the only choice that is logical and unambiguous.
- SET 12 (Page 26)
- 135. c. This is a sentence fragment.
- 136. a. The word going needs to be deleted.
- 137. d. There are no errors.
- 138. b. This is a run-on sentence.
- 139. c. The modifier last summer is misplaced. A modifier should be nearest to the subject or action that it modifies; in this case, that action is visited, not grew up. The sentence should read: Last summer, we visited the town where my father grew up.
- 140. d. There are no errors.
- 141. c. The word unless does not logically connect the independent clauses. The sentence needs a word that indicates contrast, because what Liam loves and what Liam can expect are two opposite things; the coordinating conjunction but should replace unless.
- 142. a. This is a run-on sentence.

- 143. b. This is a sentence fragment.
144. d. There are no errors.
145. d. There are no errors.
146. b. The word that is unnecessary; two independent clauses use a comma and a coordinating conjunction.

SET 13 (Page 27)

- 147. a. The other choices are unclear because they are awkwardly constructed, obscuring who intends to set the fire.
148. a. Choices b and c are sentence fragments. Choice d represents confused sentence structure as well as lack of agreement between subject and verb.
149. c. The other choices contain unnecessary shifts in person: from people to their and we in choice a, to your and one in choice b, and to our and they in choice d.
150. a. This is the only choice that is clear and logical. It has no misplaced modifiers, and it has no shifts in verb tense. Choices b and d have misplaced modifiers and result in unclear sentences; choice c has an unnecessary shift from past to present tense.
151. b. This is the only choice that does not have a misplaced modifier. Because Miles Johnson is the sharpshooter, his name should be placed immediately after the introductory phrase—which rules out choices a and c. Choice d is awkwardly constructed and unclear.
152. c. This is the only choice that is clear and logical. Choice a reads as though the eyes are in the third or fourth grade. Choices b and d are unclear.
153. c. Choice c creates a clear comparison. It is the only choice that is clear and logical.

Section 3: AgreementSET 14 (Page 31)

- 154. a. The verb is formed incorrectly; must of missed should be replaced by must have missed.
155. b. This is an error in subject-verb agreement. The subject, committed citizens, is plural and requires a plural verb form. In this case, the correct form is exceed, not the singular form, exceeds.
156. b. The error is grammatical; there is no subject-verb agreement in this sentence. The subject Each is singular and requires a singular verb form. In this situation, the correct form is has had.
157. a. This is an error in agreement. The singular noun one requires the singular verb is. When the subject (in this case one) follows the verb, as in a sentence beginning with here or there, be careful to determine the subject. In this sentence, the subject is not the plural noun keys.
158. d. This sentence has an illogical shift in verb tense. The sentence should read: He realized that he had forgotten his umbrella.
159. d. In this sentence, there is faulty parallelism. The word asking should be replaced by the verb asked. This sentence is in the past tense, so the two verbs asked and phoned should be parallel.
160. d. The use of the present participle creating results in a sentence with faulty parallelism. A form of the verb create should be parallel with the preceding verb became, which is in the past tense. The word creating should be replaced by created.
161. b. There is no subject-verb agreement in this sentence. The singular collective noun staff requires a singular verb form. Therefore, the plural form deserve should be replaced with the singular deserves.

- 162. d. This sentence has faulty parallelism. There are three items in a series in this sentence: build homes, find water, and learn to understand the blessings. To make these three items parallel, the word to should be deleted in the underlined portion represented by choice d.
- 163. d. There is no subject-verb agreement in the sentence. The subject of the second independent clause is filter, a singular noun. Therefore, the singular form of the verb should be used. The verb reduce should be replaced by the verb reduces.
- 164. b. This sentence has a problem with subject-verb agreement. The two subjects of the sentence, chief executive officer and chairman of the board, require a plural verb. In this case, the singular form agrees should be replaced by the plural form agree.
- 165. b. The error is in verb formation. The sentence requires the past tense of the verb begin. To correct this error, the past participle begun should be replaced with the past tense began.

SET 15 (Page 32)

- 166. c. The sentence requires a verb in the past tense.
- 167. d. The sentence requires a verb in the past tense.
- 168. d. The appropriate tense for this verb is the present tense.
- 169. b. The verbal form been eating fits with the verb have.
- 170. c. The infinitive form of the verb repair, goes with to in the sentence.
- 171. a. This is a command; the subject of the sentence is understood (You call).
- 172. d. The verb was agrees with its subject, problem, and is in the past tense.
- 173. c. Since the action takes place in the past, the only correct choice is the past perfect had fallen.
- 174. b. This is the only choice that is in agreement with the singular subject woman.
- 175. c. The correct verb form is the past tense swung.
- 176. b. The verb are agrees with the plural noun restaurants.
- 177. a. The singular verb gets agrees with the singular noun noise.

SET 16 (Page 33)

- 178. d. A plural subject takes a plural verb; since the subject words is plural, the verb to be carved must also be plural.
- 179. a. Correct as is. There are two possible errors in this sentence: One is subject/verb agreement and the other is the use of the words between and among. Between is used to compare two things; among is used to compare more than two things. Since the subject relationship is singular, the verb to determine must also be singular. Only choice a makes the comparison between two things and uses the singular verb determines.
- 180. d. The three underlined elements make a coordinated series; to clearly express their relationship to each other, they need to abide by one consistent grammatical construction. In choice a, the verb must generate breaks the parallelism. In choice b, the word for breaks the parallelism. In choice c, the series changes construction, adopting a different type of parallel construction; however, the third element, soil conservation, does not use a present participle verb before it. It breaks the parallelism. In choice e, none of the three elements are parallel.
- 181. b. The two underlined elements make a coordinated pair; they need to abide by one grammatical construction. Only in choice b are both verbs in their infinitive form.
- 182. c. In choice c, the tense of to ring and to write agree; there is no shift in tense.
- 183. d. Choice d is best because it is written in the active voice.

- 184. e. Choice a is ambiguous: Is everyone submitting to the council? Choices b, c, and d make an illogical shift in verb tense.
- 185. b. The second clause of this sentence requires a parallel construction. Choice b is the only one in which all four elements use the same grammatical construction, a verb in the present tense followed by a noun.
- 186. b. This is the best answer because there are no shifts in verb tense. For the sentence to be logical, all the verbs should remain in the past tense.
- 187. d. To ensure means to make certain; to assure means to cause a feeling of certainty. The Senator wants his constituents to feel secure; he is not actually securing the money by putting it in a vault. Choice e is redundant; the verbs to assure and to promise mean the same thing.
- 188. e. Conscience is a moral awareness; conscious is a physical awareness. Josh was awake and physically aware of his environment. Choices a and b use the wrong word to describe Josh's condition. In choice d, it seems the operation was given a local anesthetic, not Josh.

SET 17 (Page 35)

- 189. b. The correct verb form is applauded.
- 190. b. There is no subject-verb agreement. The verb should be plural because the subject, plants, is plural.
- 191. b. The verb is used incorrectly. The correct usage is should have been.
- 192. c. The verb in this sentence has been incorrectly formed; it should be drank, not drunk.
- 193. b. There is no subject-verb agreement. The verb should be singular because the subject, the liveliest one, is singular.
- 194. a. The sentence makes an illogical shift in tense from the present to the past tense.
- 195. b. There is no subject-verb agreement. The verb should be plural because the subject, photographs, is plural.
- 196. d. There are no errors.
- 197. b. The correct verb form is has broken.
- 198. a. The correct verb form is rang.
- 199. b. The sentence makes an illogical shift in tense—from the past to the present tense.
- 200. b. There is no subject-verb agreement. The verb should be singular because the subject, one (not boys), is singular.
- 201. c. The correct verb form is has worn.
- 202. a. This sentence makes an illogical shift in tense—from the past to the present tense.

SET 18 (Page 36)

- 203. a. The verbs got and took agree in tense.
- 204. d. The verbs liked and got agree in tense.
- 205. a. Became and eating are the correct forms of the verbs.
- 206. a. This is a complete sentence; the others are fragments.
- 207. d. This is a complete sentence; the others are fragments.
- 208. b. This is a complete sentence; c and d are fragments; in choice a the verb does not agree in number with its subject, one.
- 209. b. This is a complete sentence; the others are fragments.
- 210. a. The comparison between the speaker's and his or her sister's taste for fish is clearest in this sentence. In choice b, the speaker likes his/her sister better than fish. Choice c does not make sense. Choice d has an ambiguous pronoun: It probably refers to fish, but who can tell?
- 211. a. In choice b, the cat seems to be renting the room. In choice c, it's unclear whether he refers to the cat or to Mr. Morris; choice d implies that Mr. Morris rented himself a room.

212. d. In this sentence, the verb tense between the independent clause and the subordinating clause agree. In choice a, the lack of agreement in tense makes the sentence unclear as to time; choice b doesn't make it clear who ate the popcorn; choice c implies that the popcorn watched the movie.

SET 19 (Page 37)

- 213. e. Because there are no grammatical, idiomatic, logical, or structural errors in this sentence, e is the best answer.
- 214. a. Their should be replaced with the contraction They're, meaning They are.
- 215. d. This is a grammatical error. The contraction it's (meaning it is) should be replaced by the possessive pronoun its.
- 216. e. Because there are no grammatical errors in this sentence, the best answer is choice e.
- 217. e. Because there are no grammatical errors in this sentence, choice e is the best answer.
- 218. a. This is an error of agreement. The singular pronoun it does not agree with the plural noun mollusks. In this sentence, it should be replaced by the plural pronoun they.
- 219. c. This is an error in agreement. The singular pronoun him does not agree with its antecedent, the plural noun people. The word him should be replaced with the plural pronoun them.
- 220. e. Because there are no grammatical errors in this sentence, choice e is the best answer.
- 221. c. The word there should be replaced by the possessive pronoun their.
- 222. c. The pronoun me should be replaced by the pronoun I. In this sentence, my brother, my Aunt Clarissa, and I is the subject, and the nominative (subject) case is required. Me should be only used as an object pronoun.

223. e. Because there are no grammatical errors in this sentence, choice e is the best answer.

224. a. This sentence has an agreement problem. The plural pronoun them does not agree with the singular noun glossary. Therefore, them should be replaced by the singular pronoun it.

225. b. Your should be replaced by you're. Because these two words are pronounced alike, they are often confused. Your indicates possession and you're is the contraction of you are.

226. e. Because there are no grammatical, idiomatic, logical, or structural errors in this sentence, e is the best answer.

227. e. Because there are no grammatical, idiomatic, logical, or structural errors in this sentence, e is the best answer.

SET 20 (Page 39)

- 228. b. The correct form of the pronoun is me (objective case).
- 229. c. The correct pronoun is who, because it refers to a person, and it is the subject form of who (not the object form, whom), because who is doing something, making candied figs.
- 230. b. The pronoun agrees in number with the noun to which it refers.
- 231. b. The antecedent, George and Michael, is plural, so the plural pronoun their is the correct choice.
- 232. c. The pronoun that agrees in number with the noun to which it refers, artichoke.
- 233. c. The pronoun them agrees with the plural noun flowers.
- 234. d. She and I is the subject of the sentence, so the subjective case is needed.
- 235. a. The possessive case is used before the word taking, because it functions like a noun in this sentence.

SET 21 (Page 40)

- 236. b. There are two potential problems in this sentence: 1) the grammatical agreement between the nouns Kendra or Zoë and the pronoun her; and 2) the formation of the verb to bring. In choice b both of these are correct. Because the sentence reads Kendra or Zoë, the pronoun must be singular; only one of them brought the volleyball. Brought is the past tense of bring. Choice a is wrong because the pronoun their is plural. Choice c is wrong because there is not a correct pronoun. Choices d and e are incorrect because brang is not the past tense of bring.
- 237. a. This choice is the only one that uses the proper form of possessive pronouns.
- 238. c. This choice is best because it is the only one in which there is no shift in person; i.e., If you are looking . . . , you should compare. . . . All of the other choices shift from third person (someone, one, a person) to second person (you).
- 239. e. This is the only choice to have agreement between the subject and verb and between the pronoun and its antecedent.
- 240. d. When the relationship between a pronoun and its antecedent is unclear, as it is in this sentence, it should be changed to avoid ambiguity. There are two boys, Andre and Robert, and choice d makes the relationship clear: Robert's family moved, and not Andre's family.

SET 22 (Page 40)

- 241. c. The word I should be replaced with the word me, because the pronoun is the object, not the subject.
- 242. d. There are no errors.
- 243. d. There are no errors.
- 244. c. The correct pronoun is I, not me.
- 245. b. The contraction who's is incorrect. The correct usage is the possessive whose.
- 246. b. This sentence contains a shift in number. Bears is a plural noun, so the clause should read: they were growling.
- 247. d. There are no errors.
- 248. c. The contraction Three's, which means Three is, is the correct usage.
- 249. a. The correct usage is the possessive theirs, not there's.
- 250. a. Either is incorrect. Use either with or and neither with nor.
- 251. a. The pronoun him is incorrect. He should be used because you and he are the subjects of the dependent clause.
- 252. b. The contraction You're should be replaced with the possessive Your.
- 253. c. This sentence makes a shift in person. It should read: The committee members should work as hard as they can.
- 254. d. There are no errors.
- 255. d. There are no errors.

SET 23 (Page 42)

- 256. b. In the other choices, the pronoun reference is ambiguous; it is unclear who is traveling abroad.
- 257. d. The other answers contain unnecessary shifts in person from I to one, you, and a person.
- 258. b. This is the only choice that is clear and unambiguous. All the other choices contain misplaced modifiers, resulting in unclear and illogical statements.
- 259. c. This is the only choice that is grammatically correct. Choices a and d use the verbs incorrectly. Choice b uses a instead of an before anthology.

Section 4: ModifiersSET 24 (Page 44)

- 260. b. In this sentence, loud modifies the verb screamed. The adverb loudly should be used instead of loud.
- 261. e. Because there are no errors in this sentence, choice e is the correct answer.
- 262. d. This sentence makes a comparison between Frieda and two other girls (three people); therefore, the superlative tallest should be used. Taller, the comparative form, is incorrect because it compares only two people.
- 263. e. Because there are no errors in this sentence, choice e is the best answer.
- 264. e. Because there are no errors in this sentence, choice e is the best answer.
- 265. d. The double comparative more cozier is redundant; just the comparative word cozier is sufficient to convey the idea that New York movie theaters will become more comfortable with the addition of love seats.
- 266. e. Because there are no errors in this sentence, e is the best answer.
- 267. a. In this sentence, close attempts to modify the verb resemble. The adverb closely should be used instead of close.
- 268. d. This sentence makes a comparison between many house guests. Therefore, the superlative word most should be used. More only compares two things.
- 269. c. In this sentence, hesitant attempts to modify the verb walked. The adverb hesitantly should be used instead of hesitant.
- 270. a. Use bad when modifying a noun; use badly when modifying a verb. The verb treated should be modified by the adverb badly, not the adjective bad.

SET 25 (Page 46)

- 271. a. The missing phrase modifies the verb are armed and creates a comparison between two types of people, heroes and villains. Therefore, you need a comparative form of the adverb heavily.
- 272. c. The comparison is between two things, a cake made last week and a cake made this week; choices a and d can be ruled out. Choice b, more better, is redundant. Choice c, better, is the best choice to make the comparison.
- 273. d. The missing phrase modifies the verb; therefore the sentence requires an adverb. Choices a and b are adjectives and can be ruled out. Choice c makes an unnecessary comparison.
- 274. b. The comparison is being made among three brothers; therefore, this sentence requires a superlative. Choices a and c only compare two things, and choice d is redundant.
- 275. a. The missing phrase modifies a noun and makes a comparison between two things, what he thought and what it was; therefore the sentence requires a comparative adjective. Choice b is an adverb. Choice c does not make a comparison, and choice d is a superlative, a comparison of three or more things. Choice a, more terrifying, is the best choice.
- 276. d. Use fewer with nouns that can be counted.

SET 26 (Page 46)

- 277. d. Adjectives modify nouns and adverbs modify verbs. In choice d, the adjectives frightening and unhappy correctly modify the noun ending. In choices a and b, the adverb frighteningly incorrectly attempts to modify a noun. In choice c, the adverb—unhappily—incorrectly attempts to modify a noun. Choice e is unnecessarily wordy.
- 278. b. The sentence makes a comparison between Adela and all other members of the graduating class; therefore, the superlative form most should be used. Choices a and d are wrong because they use the comparative more. Choice c is wrong because the word importantly is an adverb and cannot modify the noun member. Choice e is wrong because it uses the word like incorrectly.
- 279. a. The word than is a conjunction used to indicate a comparison, and used as a conjunction, it is followed by the the pronoun I. The word conservatively is an adverb modifying the verb dresses. Choice a is the only one that correctly makes the comparison and uses the adverb correctly.
- 280. e. This is the correct choice because the sentence does not contain a double negative. The other choices either use two negative words within a single sentence or use an incorrect comparative form of easy.
- 281. a. The sentence compares an individual and an entire crowd of individuals; therefore, it requires a superlative. Only choice a coherently uses the superlative happiest to make the comparison among all the many people in the crowd.
- 282. d. When a comparison is made, the word fewer is used with nouns that can be counted; the word less is used with quantities that cannot be counted.
- 283. d. This sentence makes a comparison between strip mining and all other types of mining; therefore, it requires a superlative. Choices a and b compare only two things while choice e inappropriately uses an adverb. Choice c uses a double superlative and is redundant.

SET 27 (Page 47)

- 284. d. There are no errors.
- 285. a. The adjective sad should be replaced with the adverb sadly, which correctly modifies the verb wandered.
- 286. a. This sentence contains a double negative.
- 287. d. There are no errors.
- 288. d. There are no errors.
- 289. a. This sentence has a usage error: fewer cookies, not less cookies.
- 290. d. There are no errors.
- 291. a. Between is only used to refer to two things. Among is the correct word to use in this sentence.
- 292. d. There are no errors.
- 293. c. Most awfullest is a double superlative, and therefore redundant.

Section 5: Paragraph DevelopmentSET 28 (Page 50)

- 294. a. This is the best choice because it is the only one that refers to recycling containers, which is the main focus of this paragraph. The other choices are statements about recycling in general.
- 295. b. This is the only choice that mentions telecommuting, which is the main focus of this paragraph. The other choices are too general.

- 296. c. This choice refers to “unreasonable searches,” which is the main focus of this paragraph. Choice a can be ruled out because this idea is not developed by the other two sentences. Choices b and d do not relate to the topic of unreasonable searches.
- 297. b. This choice clearly fits with the main focus of the paragraph, which is the skill that is needed to hand-rear orphaned baby birds. Choice a is too vague to be a topic sentence. Choices c and d introduce other topics.
- 298. c. The main focus of the paragraph is the height of a wave. This is the only choice that introduces that topic.
- 299. a. The paragraph expresses the writer’s opinion about respect for the law. Choices b and d can be ruled out because they are irrelevant to the main topic. Choice c can also be eliminated because it discusses respect for other people, not respect for the law.
- 300. b. Choice b addresses both of Gary’s vanities: his person and his situation. Choice a deals only with Gary’s vanity of person. Choice c deals only with his vanity of position. Choice d is not supported in the passage.
- 301. d. Changing the course of history and nations going to war implies that the subject of the paragraph is history; these phrases also connote danger and intrigue.
- 302. a. This is the only choice that is in keeping with the main focus of the paragraph. Although dogs are mentioned in the paragraph, choices b and c can be ruled out because Sentences 2 and 3 do not logically follow either choice.
- 303. b. This choice focuses the paragraph by speaking of a particular patterned corridor, as is described in the rest of the paragraph. Choices a and c only speak of patterned corridors in general. Choice d is contradicted in the passage.
- 304. b. This choice is most relevant to the rest of the paragraph, which is about protecting children from swallowing dangerous medications. Choices a and d do not mention danger; choice c does not mention protection and is also written in a different style than the rest of the paragraph.
- 305. a. This sentence contrasts writers who endanger their lives in order to have something to write about with those who do not. The rest of the paragraph illustrates this statement. Choice b is too broad. Choices c and d contain elements not expressed in the passage.
- 306. d. This choice specifically defines the kind of hearsay evidence that is admissible in a trial and would be logically followed by a definition of the kind of hearsay evidence that is inadmissible. It works better as a topic sentence than choice c, which is more general. Choices a and b contradict the rest of the paragraph.
- 307. c. Choice c is the only choice that prepares the reader for the fact that the paragraph constitutes a set of instructions for workers.
- 308. d. Choice d is the only sentence that focuses on both the tickler and its usefulness to secretaries, and therefore is relevant to all the other sentences in the paragraph. Choices a and b are too general to effectively focus the paragraph; choice c is too narrow.
- 309. c. This choice focuses most sharply on the main topic of the paragraph—muscle atrophy and bone loss. Choices a and b are too broad to guide the reader to the focus of the paragraph. Choice d is too limited.
- 310. a. The word rather indicates a contrast to whatever came before. Choice a is the only sentence that guides the reader to the contrast between the old definition of asthma and the new. Choices b and c are less precisely related to the new understanding of asthma. Choice d is not related at all.

311. a. Choice a is more specific than the other choices and more sharply focused toward the entire paragraph. Choices b and d are more vague and general, and choice c is written in a slightly different, more upbeat style.

SET 29 (Page 55)

- 312. a. Choice a expands on the topic sentence. Choices b and c do not relate directly to indoor pollution. The style of choice d is more informal than that of the topic sentence.
- 313. c. This choice directly illustrates the topic sentence. Choice a does not mention the Middle Ages, choice b does not mention red hair, and choice d is unrelated to the topic sentence.
- 314. a. Choice a relates directly to self-medication. The other choices do not.
- 315. c. The idea expressed in the topic sentence is counterintuitive, as stated in choice c. (The words This idea also gives an important clue, since an idea is the subject of the topic sentence.) The other choices do not relate directly to the nature of light.
- 316. b. Choice b elaborates on the topic sentence. Choices a and c are not related to it. Choice d is wrong because although it is true, and it is e-mail-related, it is not related to the topic sentence which focuses on the effect that e-mail has on office workers.
- 317. c. Choice c expands on the list of good reasons to eat organic food. The other choices are simply neutral facts.
- 318. d. Choice d helps explode the myth spoken of in the topic sentence by giving alternatives to student loans. The other choices do not deal directly with the idea expressed in the topic sentence.
- 319. b. The topic sentence is obviously from a contract and speaks of an agreement. Choice b goes on to explain, in the language of a contract, what that agreement is and so is more closely related to the topic sentence than the other choices.
- 320. d. This is the only choice that logically follows the topic: It provides a possible reason why Americans are fascinated with reality television. The other choices do not follow the topic sentence.
- 321. d. Only this choice deals with learning how to accept oneself and then relate it to another person. Choices a and c are both irrelevant to the topic sentence. Choice b states the exact opposite of the topic sentence.
- 322. a. This is clearly the only choice that logically follows the statement about juries in colonial times. Choices b and c can be ruled out because they do not refer back to colonial times. Choice d refers to colonial times but not to juries.
- 323. c. This choice develops the topic sentence by providing information about what a landscaper would recommend under these conditions. Choices a, b, and d veer away from the topic.
- 324. b. This is the only choice that develops the topic sentence. Choice a does not even mention ginkgo. Choice c is redundant because Europe is part of the world. Choice d, by referring to an old study, veers completely away from the topic.
- 325. a. This is the best choice because it directly follows the information that the earth is ancient and complex. Choice b changes the topic to mammals. Choice c also strays from the topic sentence. Choice d changes the topic to Darwin.

SET 30 (Page 59)

- 326. d. The passage is about the cassowary bird, not about human beings. Sentence 4 is irrelevant to the topic.
- 327. c. The passage is about the nature of storytelling and has nothing to do with writing programs.
- 328. b. The passage has to do with Caribbean cuisine. People traveling to the Caribbean for vacation is irrelevant to the main topic.
- 329. c. The focus of the paragraph is ratatouille, not zucchini.
- 330. c. This is the only sentence that does not mention sleepwalking, which is the subject of the passage.
- 331. d. Although there is a connection between Lyme disease and deer ticks, this connection is not made in the paragraph.
- 332. d. The first three sentences are written in an objective, professional tone. The tone of Sentence 4 is much more personal and subjective so even though it says something about a harp, it is quite out of character in this paragraph.
- 333. b. This is the only sentence that mentions religion or any human activity at all. The other sentences define the solstices in lay science terms.
- 334. a. The other three sentences objectively discuss the role and qualifications of a meteorologist. Sentence 1 tells us what people think of weather forecasters. Its tone is also much more casual than the rest of the paragraph.
- 335. b. This choice has the objective tone of a textbook and is a general statement. The other choices describe a particular child and are written in a fictional style.
- 336. b. Choices a, c, and d list specific characteristics of the two different types of ghosts, benevolent (good) and malevolent (bad). Choice b is just an ironic observation on the general subject of ghosts.
- 337. d. Choices a, b, and c deal with the characteristics of sociopaths. Choice d simply talks about criminals, most of whom are distinguished from sociopaths in the very first sentence.
- 338. b. This choice has Eleanor Roosevelt as its focus. The other choices focus on Jessie Street.
- 339. a. Choice a addresses the benefits of being able to exercise even if the weather is bad. The remainder of the paragraph focuses on the benefits of exercising without fancy equipment or health clubs.
- 340. c. The paragraph as a whole deals with making the most of a staff's talents. It is also written directly to the supervisor. The word you is used in every sentence except choice c. Not only does choice c use a different tone and voice, but it also discusses a program that is designed to reward employees and veers away from the main topic.
- 341. c. This choice is a general statement about CO poisoning. The other choices all relate to a firefighter's specific duties in dealing with victims of CO poisoning.

SET 31 (Page 62)

- 342. d. This is the correct chronological order of the events described in the paragraph.
- 343. c. Sentence 2 gives an overview of what the paragraph is about. Sentence 3 gives specific reasons why Sentence 2 is correct. Sentence 1 gives the reason why Sentence 3 is correct.

- 344. b. Sentence 1 provides a statement about adding a treat to a child's lunchbox periodically and gives no indication, by its tone or its wording, that it is based upon any other sentence. Sentence 4 tells us that in spite of the truth in that statement, it is best, as a general rule, to provide healthy snacks and it uses the word however, which indicates that it is responding to another idea which we've already heard. Sentence 2 with the word usually, gives a definition of what is considered a healthy snack. Sentence 3 goes on to provide specific examples of healthy snacks.
- 345. b. Sentence 3 is the topic sentence and states the main goal of the neighborhood association. Sentence 2 goes on to cite specific tasks that help the association achieve that goal. Sentence 1, with the word Additionally, tells us that there is one more thing the association does, even though it is a less frequent and less primary responsibility.
- 346. a. In this choice, the order is chronological. In Sentence 4, they take Grandma to the Greyhound station. In Sentence 2, the bus has not yet moved away from the station. In Sentence 1, the bus jolts away but is still in town. In Sentence 3, the bus (at least in the narrator's mind) is out on the open highway.
- 347. a. Sentence 1 is the topic sentence. Sentence 4 defines the term double jeopardy used in Sentence 1; Sentence 2 gives another definition, signaled by also; sentence 3 begins with the word Finally and gives the last definition.
- 348. c. Sentence 3 is clearly the lead sentence as it tells us something about the new employee handbook and is in no way based on information provided in the other two sentences. Sentence 2 uses the word also to indicate that it is telling us something else about the handbook, something that adds to a fact we've already been told. Sentence 1, which is making a generalization about the new policies, is based on information we already know from Sentences 3 and 2. Because of this, it can only follow these sentences and not precede them.
- 349. a. Sentence 2 sets the stage—this is a memory. After that, the order is chronological: In Sentence 1, the man tries to teach his son how to pitch. In Sentence 4, he wasn't interested, so he gave up. Sentence 3 logically follows—the memory of giving up makes him feel sad and guilty.
- 350. d. Sentence 4 sets the reader up to expect a discussion of a procedure, the writing of reports of a fire. Sentence 3 tells how you can find the right report forms. Sentence 1 leads logically into Sentence 2.
- 351. a. Sentence 2 is the topic sentence. Sentence 1 provides reasons for the procedure described in the topic sentence. Sentence 3 gives further definition as a conclusion.
- 352. d. The word Yet at the beginning of Sentence 1 is a clue that this is not the beginning sentence. Sentences 4 and 1 are the only ones that logically follow each other, so the other choices can be ruled out.
- 353. c. Sentence 1 is the topic sentence and states the general situation. Sentence 2 poses a question about the situation in the topic sentence. Sentence 4 offers the response. Sentence 3 concludes the paragraph as it gives a reminder about the original goal.
- 354. b. Sentence 2 is the topic sentence, introducing the subject. Sentence 3 expands the topic, and Sentence 1 gives more definition to the Native American art form.
- 355. a. This is the only logical order for the paragraph. Sentence 1 introduces the topic; Sentences 2 and 3 develop the topic.

SET 32 (Page 65)

- 356. b. Paragraph 2 contradicts the misconceptions potential adopters of racing greyhounds might have about the breed. Choice b states that certain popular beliefs about greyhounds are erroneous and acts as a transition to the facts that follow in the paragraph. Choice a does not focus on contradicting the misinformation; also, the phrase even so appears to agree with the misconceptions rather than contradict them. Choice c does not focus on the argument; instead, it repeats information given in the previous sentence. Choice d, rather than supporting the main purpose of the paragraph—which is to dispel myths about racing greyhounds—actually contradicts information in Parts 6 and 7.
- 357. b. The possessive pronoun their is correct.
- 358. c. This choice is the best because it retains the writer’s informal, reassuring tone and because the information in it furthers the purpose of this paragraph—i.e., the suitability of greyhounds as household pets. This response also is clearly directed at a general audience of householders. Choice a is incorrect because the information does not keep with the topic of the paragraph; also, the tone set by the inclusion of a precise statistic is too formal. Choice b retains the informal tone of the selection but it provides information already given in the first paragraph and not suitable to the purpose of this paragraph. The tone in choice d is argumentative, which defeats the author’s purpose of trying to reassure the reader.
- 359. c. This question tests the ability to recognize a sentence fragment. Although choice c does include a subject and a verb, it is a dependent clause because it begins with the adverb when. Choices a, b, and d are all standard sentences.
- 360. a. This question assesses the ability to recognize redundancy in a sentence. Choice a removes the redundancy of Part 8 by taking out the word also, which repeats the meaning of the introductory phrase in addition to. Choices b and c involve changing singular nouns to plural and plural possessive nouns, which is not necessary and would make the sentence grammatically incorrect. Choice d would change the meaning of the sentence incorrectly. The attitude of the community toward young people is being reported, not what young people have reported about the community attitude.
- 361. c. Choice c provides a fact that supports and expands upon the information given in the previous sentences. The first two sentences tell us about the program’s success and the plans for expanding it. The third sentence builds upon these ideas by providing detailed information about the results of the program and who was involved. Choice a changes the subject of this paragraph. This paragraph is about the program in a specific school district and choice a makes a comment about other school districts, which may be true, but which is not related to the topic of this particular paragraph. Choice b adds a detail about the program but it is a single detail as opposed to a conclusive, summarizing sentence that gives us a clear idea of the program specifics. Choice d, which mentions the possibility of other pilot programs, again, changes the subject and veers away from the main topic of this paragraph which is the Mural Painting Program within this particular school district.

362. d. This question tests the ability to recognize standard sentence structure. Part 2 is an incorrectly punctuated compound sentence, a comma splice. Choice d correctly joins the two simple sentences into a compound one by using a semicolon in place of the comma. Choice a creates an error in subject-verb agreement. Choice b is incorrect because a dash cannot join two simple sentences into a compound one. Choice c turns the first phrase of the sentence, Deciding on the hamburger steak special, into a dangling modifier.

363. b. This question assesses the ability to recognize the correct use of modifiers. The phrase After tasting each of the dishes on my plate is a dangling modifier; the sentence does not have a subject pronoun this phrase could modify. Choice b is correct because it supplies the missing subject pronoun I. Choices a, c, and d are incorrect because they let the modification error stand; none of them provide a subject pronoun the phrase could modify.

SET 33 (Page 67)

364. b. This question assesses the ability to recognize the correct agreement of subject and verb. Choice b is correct because it uses the third-person singular of the verb to be, is, which agrees in number and in person with the subject one. Choice a is wrong because it does not correct the subject-verb agreement problem; instead, it removes an optional comma between location and and. Choice c is incorrect because it does not correct the agreement error, instead, it makes an unnecessary change in vocabulary from increase to enhance. Choice d is incorrect because it does not correct the agreement problem; instead, it creates an error by misplacing the modifier only directly after the semicolon.

365. d. This question tests the ability to recognize the logical connection of ideas in a paragraph and to recognize grammatical consistency. Choice d gives a general piece of advice (start walking), which is followed by two sentences that point to things that will result from following this advice. Choice a is incorrect because although it does give a general piece of advice that would make sense at the beginning of this paragraph, it contains an error in the pronoun/antecedent agreement (using the pronoun people, which disagrees in person with the antecedent you). Choice b is incorrect because it includes other forms of physical activity (jogging, bicycling) that are off the topic (walking) and are irrelevant to the development and order of ideas in the passage. Choice c is incorrect because it contains the same pronoun/antecedent agreement problem as choice a, and the sentence does not respect the order of ideas in the paragraph; it returns, in the third paragraph of the passage, to information and ideas that are more appropriate to the first paragraph.

366. a. Choice a is correct because a comma after the word rewards in Part 3 closes off the parenthetical phrase between the subject, physical activity, and the predicate, will. Choice b is incorrect because it introduces an incomplete comparison into Part 1. Choice c is incorrect because it adds an unnecessary comma into Part 5. Choice d is incorrect because it adds a misplaced colon to Part 2.

367. b. The word appraised, meaning judged, does not make sense in the context; the correct word for the context is apprised, meaning informed. Choices a, c, and d are all incorrect because the words incriminate, criteria, and ascertain are all used correctly in context.

- 368. c. The information in Part 5 continues the description of what judges must ascertain about such cases, which began in Part 3. Skipping next to the responsibilities of officers and back to judges, as happens in the passage as it stands, is confusing. Choices a and b are incorrect because they introduce examples before the passage states what the examples are supposed to show. Choice d is incorrect because deleting Part 2 removes the statement from which all the paragraph's examples and information follow.
- 369. c. Part 4 contains a run-on sentence; the conjunction however requires the use of either a colon or semicolon before it in order to link two sentences. The other choices are incorrect because the parts they indicate contain standard sentences.
- 370. d. This choice provides the plural reflexive pronoun themselves, which agrees in number and person with the subject, Those. Choice a is incorrect because it provides the verb combine which does not agree in person or in number with the subject, snowboarding. Choice b is incorrect because it removes a hyphen necessary to the creation of compound adjectives. Choice c is incorrect because it changes the verb to the past tense, which does not agree with the present tense used throughout the paragraph.
- 371. b. The topic of the paragraph is about the ecology of an area; it does not specifically address environmental organizations.
- 372. c. Since the term environmental groups is not a proper noun, it does not need to be capitalized. Choices a, b, and d are grammatically incorrect.
- 373. b. Part 5 contains the comparative form more, but the sentence only includes one side of the comparison. The phrase someone . . . may feel more tired is an incomplete comparison because it does not state what people feel more tired than. Choices a, c, and d are incorrect because these parts do not contain incomplete or faulty comparisons.
- 374. a. This question requires the ability to infer the logical relationships between ideas in a sequence. In this case, relationships are, first, between stated fact and the conclusion or hypothesis drawn from the fact (Since); and, second, between the hypothesis and a particular illustration supporting the hypothesis (For example).
- SET 34 (Page 70)
- 375. d. This question calls on the ability to identify standard usage of the possessive. Choice d is correct because the word researchers is actually a possessive noun, and so an apostrophe must be added. Choices a and c are incorrect because they substitute misused homonyms for the words given. Choice b is incorrect because it contains a faulty pronoun/antecedent—the microprobes have a diminutive width, not the brain.
- 376. b. In Part 4, the adverb typically is misused as an adjective to modify the noun wire. The other choices do not contain nonstandard uses of modifiers.
- 377. c. The phrases since they [microprobes] are slightly thinner than a human hair and because of their [microprobes'] diminutive width contain the same information.
- 378. b. The predicate does not match the subject grammatically, which is necessary when using the verb is: A passenger-created disturbance doesn't match by playing . . . or creating.

- 379. c. This choice makes use of parallel structure because the list of the conductors' obligations are all expressed in the same subject/verb grammatical form: Conductors will wait, will allow, will not allow. In choices a, b, and d, the parallelism of the list is thrown off by the last item in the list, which changes the subject of its verb from operators to passengers.
- 380. b. Part 6 contains a nonstandard use of a preposition. The standard idiom is comply with rather than comply to. Choices a, c, and d do not contain nonstandard uses of prepositions.
- 381. b. Part 6 contains a sentence fragment; the sentence is a dependent clause. Choices a, c, and d all refer to standard sentences.
- 382. c. The main purpose of this paragraph is strictly informational, to outline Dr. Miranda Woodhouse's plan to reduce the risks of heart disease, and choice c focuses the reader's attention on the four strategies that Dr. Woodhouse proposes as part of this plan. Choice a contains seemingly contradictory information which is in no way implied or stated in the paragraph. Choice b focuses on the life expectancy rates of American citizens and while lowering heart disease may boost life expectancy rates, this paragraph does not deal with that at all. It focuses exclusively on Dr. Woodhouse's plan for preventing heart disease. Choice d makes an argumentative claim about one part of Dr. Woodhouse's plan, which is out of place in a paragraph that seeks only to outline the basic strategies.
- 383. c. The possessive pronoun their is used erroneously in Part 9. There is the word that should be used.
- 384. c. A comma is necessary after the first part of the sentence, which is an introductory phrase. Choice a is incorrect because visiting London, Paris, and Rome was not dependent on her being ten years old, so the word Because doesn't make sense. Choice b is incorrect because a comma after Although is unnecessary and makes the sentence grammatically incorrect. Choice d is incorrect because the word brehtaking is describing a noun (scenes) and requires an adjective, not an adverb. Breathtakingly is an adverb.
- 385. b. Part 2 contains a sentence fragment. Choices a, c, and d are incorrect because they all contain standard sentences.
- 386. c. The semicolon in Part 6 must be followed by an independent clause, and here it is followed by a dependent clause. Choices a, b, and d are incorrect because they all contain standard sentences.
- 387. b. The underlined word in Part 7 needs to be made into a plural noun. Choice a is incorrect because it is a singular noun which makes for incorrect subject-verb agreement. Choices c and d are incorrect because they are possessive.

SET 35 (Page 73)

- 388. b. End quotation marks must be inserted before the tag phrase, says Warner. Choice a is incorrect because the quotation marks are necessary to begin the quotation again after the tag phrase. Choice c is incorrect because the beverage case is not a clause that should be set off with commas. It is essential to the meaning of the sentence. Choice d is incorrect because than is a conjunction used to compare things and is the word that should be used here.

- 389. b. Memorize does not really make sense in this context. A more appropriate word might be mimic or imitate. Choices a, c, and d are word choices that all make sense within the context of this paragraph.
- 390. d. Part 5 acts as a topic sentence for the ideas and quotations in the third paragraph. Combining Part 5 with paragraph 3 makes the subject of the third paragraph clearer to the reader and brings information on the main topic together in the same place. Choice a would not really make any major difference in the paragraph and doesn't do anything to help focus attention on the main idea. Choice b would make the main idea less, not more, clear. Choice c would just make for a much longer sentence without adding any emphasis to the main idea.
- 391. c. The first paragraph mentions that saving room for herbs such as lavender, sage, thyme, and parsley is a characteristic of a thrifty gardener, but fails to explain why it is a sign of thrift. Choice a is incorrect because it removes information that is vital to explaining why the plants mentioned in Part 1 are appropriate to a gardener who has little time. Choice b is incorrect because reversing the order of the sentences moves the demonstrative pronoun these in Part 2 too far away from its antecedent. Choice d is incorrect because the passage does not indicate that growing roses is easy in general; rather, it suggests particular types of roses (hardy species) as appropriate to a garden that requires little time for maintenance.
- 392. a. This sentence creates a transition between the idea of harvesting food from a garden and the proper way of planting in order to achieve a good yield of food. Choice b is incorrect because it is redundant, repeating information already stated in Part 5. Choice c contains information that is on the subject matter of the first paragraph and is, thus, off-topic in the second. Choice d is off-topic and does not match the main idea of the paragraph; it mentions time-consuming work in a paragraph on the subject of gardening that takes a moderate amount of time.
- 393. b. The word lavished should be substituted for languished because it makes no sense in the context.
- 394. c. Part 4 contains a nonstandard verb form, brung, as the past-tense form of to bring; the correct verb is brought. Choices a, b, and d are incorrect because they do not contain nonstandard usages of verbs.
- 395. b. Part 3 contains a sentence fragment, for there is no main verb in the sentence. Choices a, c, and d are incorrect because they are complete sentences.
- SET 36 (Page 75)
- 396. b. Part 3 requires a comma before the coordinate conjunction so. Choice d is incorrect because it already shows a comma separating the two independent clauses. Choices a and c are incorrect because each contains only one independent clause.
- 397. a. This answer is in the simple past tense, which is the tense used throughout the paragraph. Choices b, c, and d are incorrect because they suggest tenses inconsistent with the tense of the rest of the paragraph.

- 398. b. The context requires that the noun renown be replaced by the adjective renowned. Choice a is incorrect because the change to when makes no sense in the context; it would imply that Augustus grew up before immigrating. Choice c incorrectly inserts the contraction of subject and verb it is in a context where the possessive pronoun its is required. Choice d is incorrect because it introduces a diction error into the sentence.
- 399. b. The semicolon in Part 2 is used incorrectly to introduce a list. In choices a, c, and d, the semicolon correctly separates two independent clauses.
- 400. c. The expressions year-round and in all seasons repeat the same idea. Choices a, b, and d are incorrect because none of these sentences contain unnecessary repetition. Part 4 may seem to, at first; however, the words hot and humid are described in more interesting and specific terms in the second part of the sentence.
- 401. b. The subject of Part 3 is climate and therefore requires the third-person singular form of the verb to be—is. Choice c is incorrect because the comma is correctly placed after an introductory phrase. Choice a incorrectly inserts the possessive pronoun its in a context where the contraction of subject and verb it is is required. Choice d is incorrect because the comma is necessary to close off the interruptive phrase, whether in the back country or at established campgrounds, between the subject and verb.
- 402. c. Part 7 provides information about the high cost of healthcare insurance. It doesn't give information about the main topic of this passage, which is how to choose a doctor. Choices a, b, and d are incorrect because all of these sentences provide information about, and guidelines for, choosing a doctor.
- 403. a. An adverb is required here because the word is being used to add information to a verb (responds). The correct form of the word is quickly. Choice b is incorrect because the term more better is grammatically incorrect. Choice c is incorrect because in the context of this sentence, using the past tense, accepted, is not appropriate. Choice d is incorrect because the sentence requires an adjective here, not an adverb.
- 404. a. In Part 1, the adjective good is misused as an adverb; it needs to be replaced by the adverb well.
- 405. a. In Part 4, the verb assure, to make certain, is nonsensical in the context; it should be replaced by the verb assume, to suppose or take for granted. Choices b, c, and d are incorrect because all these words are used properly in their context.
- 406. d. The paragraph consistently uses the pronoun you; therefore, the inconsistent use of our should be replaced by your. Choice a is incorrect because the comma is necessary before the coordinate conjunction but. Choice b is incorrect because insertion of a colon would incorrectly divide a phrase. Choice c is incorrect because it would introduce an error of tense shift into the paragraph.

SET 37 (Page 78)

- 407. a. The word greek in Part 2 should be capitalized. Nationalities and languages require capitalization. Choice b is incorrect because a person's title, given before his or her name, should be capitalized, while d is incorrect because the title should not be capitalized when no name is given. Choice c is incorrect because the names of seasons are not capitalized.

- 408. a. Part 1 contains a run-on sentence. It requires a semicolon after the parentheses and before we. Choices b, c, and d are incorrect because the numbered parts they indicate all contain standard sentences.
- 409. b. The context requires a word meaning to surrender or yield, so choice b is correct. The other choices are incorrect because each has the wrong meaning for the context of the sentence.
- 410. d. To make the pair of verbs in the sentence parallel, overlooking should be changed to overlooks to match the form of the verb towers. Choice a is incorrect because the change would convert Part 7 into a run-on sentence. Choice b is incorrect because Irish, as the name of a people, must be capitalized. Choice c is incorrect because the word running is functioning as an adjective here; the verb run would make nonsense of the sentence.
- 411. d. A comma is required after an introductory dependent clause. Choice a would introduce a comma fault, separating a verb from its object. Choice b is incorrect because the semicolon would have to be followed by a complete sentence, which is not the case. Choice c is incorrect because removing the colon would create a run-on sentence.
- 412. c. Choices a and b would cause an unwarranted shift in tense from past (in which most of the passage is written) to present. Choice d would change the correctly written noun, effect, to an incorrect verb form. (Affect is a verb, except when used as a noun to denote a person's emotional expression, or lack thereof, as in: He has a joyless affect.)
- 413. b. The adjective shallow in Part 5 actually modifies the verb set; therefore, the adjective should be revised to be the adverb shallowly. Choices a, c, and d are incorrect because none of them contain a nonstandard use of a modifier.
- 414. c. The proper noun Lake must be made possessive because it is followed by the gerund arriving. Choice a is incorrect because it introduces a comma fault into the sentence. Choices b and d introduce errors in diction into the sentence.
- SET 38 (Page 414)
- 415. c. This paragraph is about how to handle business phone calls. Reversing the order of Parts 9 and 13 would cause the paragraph to follow the natural order of the beginning to the end of a phone conversation. Choice a is incorrect because the information in Part 9, though misplaced, is essential information and should not be deleted. Choice b is incorrect because both Parts 8 and 13 need to come near the beginning of the paragraph, for they contain information about handling messages. Choice d is incorrect because the addition of such a sentence would repeat information already given or implied in the rest of the paragraph.
- 416. b. This sentence requires the adverb then in this context. Choice a is incorrect because it would introduce a problem of agreement between the pronoun they and its antecedent pitch. Choice c is incorrect because it would introduce a problem in subject/verb agreement. Choice d is incorrect because the possessive rather than the plural of the noun boss is necessary in this context.

- 417. d. The verb depend is, idiomatically, followed by the preposition on; in Part 10, it is wrongly followed by in. Choices a, b, and c are incorrect because none of them contain nonstandard uses of prepositions.
- 418. a. The antecedent of the pronoun they in this sentence is someone. Since someone is singular, the corrected subject pronoun should be he or she.
- 419. c. The sentence requires the contraction we're, short for we are. It is all right to use a contraction because the writer uses contractions elsewhere in the passage. Choice a is incorrect because it introduces an error in modifiers. Choice b is incorrect because a semicolon must be followed, here, by a full sentence. Choice d is incorrect because the singular a deadline would disrupt the parallelism of the list, the other elements of which are plural.
- 420. a. Choice a is the most logical sentence because it addresses the principles of the topic—Kwaanza. Choices b, c, and d would support choice a. They would not work as the topic sentence.
- 421. d. Part 2 contains a run-on sentence. These two sentences should be separated with a period after culture. Choices a, b, and c are incorrect because they all contain standard sentences.
- 422. a. Another sentence is needed to add the information that the program is only for passengers leaving the bus, not those boarding it. This information is implied in the paragraph but not directly stated; without the direct statement, the paragraph is confusing, and the reader must read between the lines to get the information. Choice b is incorrect because it removes an important instruction to drivers, rather than clarifying the paragraph's point.
- Choice c is incorrect because it adds information that contradicts the point the paragraph is making. Choice d is incorrect because it would place intervening material between the ideas of what the program is and how it operates; it would disorder the sequence of ideas.
- 423. a. The subjective pronoun who is incorrectly used to refer to the Stop Here Program; the pronoun which would be a better choice.
- 424. b. Part 5 contains two sentences linked only by a comma; a semicolon is required. Choices a, c, and d are incorrect because they all contain standard sentences.
- 425. d. In Part 4, a semicolon is used incorrectly to introduce a list; it should be replaced by a colon. Choice a is incorrect because this sentence would not make sense if the contraction we're, which means we are, replaced the verb were. Choice b is incorrect because it would introduce a comma fault between the subject others and the verb were. Choice c is incorrect because the comma is needed to separate items in a list.

SET 39 (Page 82)

- 426. a. This paragraph is written with powerful verbs. Was looking is passive and has little impact in the passage. Choices b, c, and d use the active voice.
- 427. c. Part 3 says he were sure. He is singular and takes the verb was. Choices a, b, and d are incorrect because all verbs are used correctly.
- 428. a. Cortez is a proper noun and should begin with a capital letter. Choices b, c, and d would make the sentences grammatically incorrect.
- 429. a. Commas are used to separate city from country. Choices b, c, and d would make the sentences grammatically incorrect.

- 430. b. Titles of books are always underlined or italicized. Short stories (choice a) are punctuated with quotation marks. Author's names (choice c) are not italicized. Copyrights do not need italics (choice d).
- 431. a. Choice a is written in the tone and style reflected in the passage. Choices b, c, and d are awkward versions of the same details.
- 432. d. The verb needs to be singular to agree with the singular subject of the sentence, Theodore Roosevelt. Choices a, b, and c are incorrect because they introduce a shift in tense.
- 433. a. The subject of this paragraph is the appearance and observation of cuttlefish. Choice a is about observing cuttlefish in the wild and the laboratory. Choices b and c stray from the topic of the paragraph. Choice d, while having something to do with the appearance of cuttlefish, is written in jargon that is too technical to match the tone of the rest of the passage.
- 434. c. The double mention in Part 6 of the human-like eyes of the cuttlefish is unnecessarily repetitious.
- 435. d. The correct choice is hover, because hoover is an archaic slang phrase meaning to vacuum the floor. For (meaning to indicate the purpose of the action) is the correct preposition for this sentence, so choice a is the incorrect choice. Choice b is incorrect because allow is the right word (allot, meaning to apportion, would not make sense). Choice c is incorrect, because it would make the sentence ungrammatical with regard to number.
- SET 40 (Page 85)
- 436. b. The word carnavale is a foreign word; therefore, it must be italicized. Choice c is incorrect because there is no reason to italicize the word serfs, an ordinary noun, in the passage. Choice a is incorrect because the definite article is not needed before the word Carnival used as a proper noun. Choice d is incorrect because the verb were is used correctly here, in the subjunctive mood.
- 437. a. The objective pronoun her is misused in Part 1 as a subject pronoun; it needs to be replaced with the pronoun she.
- 438. a. Quotation marks need to be inserted before the quotation is resumed after the interrupting phrase, the brochure informed her. Choice b is incorrect because the comma is required to set off the interrupting phrase from the quotation. Choice c is incorrect because the close quotation marks are necessary before the interrupting phrase. Choice d is incorrect because the quotation is not finished; it goes on for another sentence.
- 439. b. This statement maintains the formal tone established by the rest of the passage. Choices a, c, and d are still too informal.
- 440. d. In Part 7, the pronoun you needs to be changed to we to agree in number and person to the antecedents used earlier in the passage. Choices a, b, and c are incorrect because none of these sentences contain a nonstandard use of a pronoun.
- 441. a. Consequently means as a result of. The adverbs listed in choices b, c, and d do not address this sequence.
- 442. c. Choice c reflects the sentiments in the last sentence of the passage. Choices a, b, and d do not state such a profound effect.
- 443. b. The pronoun my needs to be changed to our to agree in number and person with the pronoun we. Choices a, c, and d fail to correct the pronoun/antecedent agreement problem.
- 444. a. Part 1 is a fragment and needs a verb to make it a complete sentence. The sentences in choices b, c, and d are complete.

SET 41 (Page 57)

- 445. b. The main idea of this paragraph is that, while genius has a recognizable pattern, the patterns are extraordinary. Choice b directly states that the patterns have the eerie quality of fate. Choice a does not focus ideas, but rather repeats material already stated. Choice c focuses attention on the side idea of the popular opinions about genius. Choice d contains material that is irrelevant to the main idea and argument of the passage.
- 446. a. The possessive Mozart's is required before the gerund composing. Choice b is incorrect because too, meaning excessively, is required in this context, not the preposition to. Choice c is incorrect because the possessive form does not make sense in this context. Choice d is incorrect because there, not the possessive pronoun their, is required in this context.
- 447. c. Part 4 contains an error in pronoun/antecedent agreement; the pronoun they must be changed to it in order to agree in number and person with its antecedent, regularity. Choices a, b, and d are incorrect because they contain standard uses of pronouns.
- 448. d. Part 6 is a statement about the effect of the play in theater history in general; however, this statement is placed in the midst of a description of the reception of the opening of the play. The paragraph ends with a statement about the play's effect on theater history, so Part 6 should either be moved to the end of the paragraph or removed. Since there is no choice to move Part 6 to the end of the paragraph, choice d is the correct answer. Choice a is incorrect because it still leaves Part 6 in a position where its meaning is out of place. Choice b is incorrect because removing the phrase has little effect on the paragraph; it merely removes a concrete detail. Choice c is incorrect because removing Part 9 excises the conclusion that the previous sentence has promised; it is necessary to the development of the paragraph.
- 449. c. The names of works that can be published on their own should be italicized, even if only part of the title (in this case Godot) is used to designate the work; therefore, choice b is incorrect. Choice a is incorrect because Mr. Godot names a character, not the play. Choice d is incorrect because the titles of newspapers must be italicized.
- 450. c. The comma in Part 5 separates the subject, critics and playgoers, from its verb, greeted.
- 451. b. Inserting a comma in Part 2, after the word opening, separates the introductory clause from the rest of the sentence. The sentences in choices a, c, and d are correct as they are written.
- 452. d. The two independent clauses in Part 2 need a conjunction in order for the sentence to be grammatically correct. Choices a, b, and c are incorrect because those sentences are correctly written.
- 453. c. To correctly divide is a split infinitive. The infinitive is to divide. Choices a, b, and d do not make this kind of error.
- 454. a. The context requires a verb that means to extend beyond, not to come before. The words in the other choices do not have this meaning.
- 455. b. Part 2 is the only interrogatory sentence in the passage. Since it asks a question, it needs a question mark as punctuation.

SET 42 (Page 89)

- 456. a. Since the sentence states that the system is designed to give, then it needs to ensure as well. Choices b, c, and d are correct as written.
- 457. c. The pronoun his should be replaced with their in order to agree with federal employers. There are no errors in pronoun agreement in choices a, b, or d.
- 458. d. A semicolon should separate two complete sentences (independent clauses); the second half of Part 6 is not a complete sentence but a restatement of a portion of the first half. This makes a colon appropriate. Choices a and b would create run-on sentences. Choice c would incorrectly separate two independent clauses joined by a conjunction (and) with a semicolon.
- 459. c. The pronoun is one of the subjects of the sentence, and so it should be changed from the object form him to the subject form he. Choice a is incorrect because their, meaning belonging to them, is correct in this context. Choice b is incorrect because the comma is necessary before the conjunction. Choice d is incorrect because the possessive form is not required in this context.
- 460. d. Part 5 is the only sentence fragment in this passage. It needs a subject in order to express a complete thought.
- 461. d. The word recently is the best contrast to Finally though in Part 2. Choices a, b, and c indicate time lapses that would not necessarily take place in the context of the passage.
- 462. a. The comma is needed to set off the introductory clause from the independent clause. Making the changes stated in choices b, c, or d would create a nonstandard sentence.
- 463. b. The phrase at the ceiling should be replaced with on the ceiling.
- 464. b. The pronoun it should be changed to they to agree in number and person with its antecedent, detectors. Choices a, c, and d are incorrect because they contain standard uses of pronouns.
- 465. c. The paragraphs are related in that they both talk about the physical effects of extreme heat on people and the treatment of these conditions, but the main subject of each paragraph details a different condition resulting from extreme heat. The second paragraph begins by mentioning that heat stroke is much more serious than the condition mentioned in Paragraph 1, heat exhaustion. Choice c best aids the transition by ending the first paragraph with an explanation of the most serious effects of heat exhaustion, thereby paving the way for the contrasting description of the far more serious condition, heat stroke. Choice a is off-topic; choices b and d are both about heat stroke, so they belong in the second paragraph, not the first.
- 466. b. The main idea of this paragraph is a description of the symptoms and treatment of heat stroke. The information in Part 7 about the most common victims of heat stroke is least relevant to the topic of the paragraph. The other choices, by contrast, all either discuss symptoms or treatment.
- 467. a. Part 1 is a sentence fragment; it contains no main verb.

SET 43 (Page 92)

- 468. c. The phrase what the occupants been doing needs an auxiliary verb—for example, it might read what the occupants had been doing. Choices a, b, and d are incorrect because they contain standard verb forms.
- 469. a. Part 2 contains a comma splice; the comma should be replaced with a semicolon. Choices b, c, and d are incorrect because they contain standard sentences.
- 470. b. Part 2 expresses two complete thoughts as one. To correct this sentence, a comma should be added after Greenland and the conjunction but should precede the independent clause.
- 471. d. Even though it may look like a question, Part 6 is not an interrogatory sentence. It should not be punctuated with a question mark.
- 472. c. This choice adds the subject he in the second sentence, eliminating the dangling modifier walking down the street. Otherwise the sentence reads as if the leaves are walking down the street. All other choices ignore the problem of the dangling modifier and add grammatical mistakes to the sentences.
- 473. b. This paragraph's purpose is descriptive; it describes the classroom and the corridor outside it. Choice b is correct because the information in the sentence adds to the description of the corridor. Choice a is incorrect because it adds information that describes the course Howard is to teach, which is not the subject of this paragraph. Choice c is incorrect because it adds information about the two buildings mentioned in the first paragraph; therefore, it rightfully belongs in the first paragraph, not the second. Choice d is incorrect because it adds information irrelevant to the paragraph.
- 474. c. Part 6 is a dependent clause with no independent clause to attach itself to; therefore, it is a sentence fragment.
- 475. d. The word wreaked should be replaced in this context by its homonym reeked. Choices a, b, and c are all incorrect because the words indicated are all used correctly in their context.

Essay Scoring Criteria

Use the following scoring guide to score each of your essays. Better yet, have someone else read your essay and use the scoring guide to help you see how well you have done. Sample essays for the first six essay topics follow this scoring guide.

A “6” essay is a highly effective response to the assignment; a few minor errors are allowed. It has the following additional characteristics:

- Good organization and overall coherence
- Clear explanation and/or illustration of main ideas
- Variety of sentence syntax
- Facility in language usage
- General freedom from mechanical mistakes and errors in word usage and sentence structure

A “5” essay shows competence in responding to the assigned topic but may have minor errors.

- Competent organization and general coherence
- Fairly clear explanation and/or illustration of main ideas
- Some variety of sentence syntax
- Facility in language usage
- General freedom from mechanical errors and errors in word usage and sentence structure

A “4” essay displays competence in response to the assignment. It has the following additional characteristics:

- Adequate organization and development
- Explanation and illustration of some key ideas
- Adequate language usage
- Some mechanical errors and mistakes in usage or sentence structure, but such errors are not consistent

A “3” essay shows some competence but is plainly flawed. Additionally, it has the following characteristics:

- Inadequate organization or incomplete development
- Inadequate explanation or illustration of main ideas
- A pattern of mechanical mistakes or errors in usage and sentence structure

A “2” essay shows limited competence and is severely flawed. Additionally, it has the following characteristics:

- Poor organization and general lack of development
- Little or no supporting detail
- Serious mechanical errors and mistakes in usage, sentence structure, and word choice

A “1” essay shows a fundamental lack of writing skill. Additionally, it has the following characteristics:

- Organization that is practically nonexistent and general incoherence
- Severe and widespread writing errors

A “0” essay does not address the topic assigned.

Sample “6” Essay

Though it may seem to contradict the ideal of democracy upon which our public school system is based, requiring public school students to wear uniforms is a good idea. In fact, uniforms would help schools provide a better education to all students by evening out socioeconomic differences and improving discipline among students.

Style is important, especially to children and teenagers who are busy trying to figure out who they are and what they believe in. But in many schools today, kids are so concerned about what they wear that clothing becomes a major distraction—even an obsession. Many students today are too busy to study because they’re working after school so they can afford the latest fashions. If students were required to wear uniforms, they would have less pressure to be “best dressed” and more time to devote to their studies.

More importantly, the competition over who has the hottest clothes can be devastating to the self-esteem of students from lower-income families. Because uniforms would require everyone to wear the same outfits, students from poorer families would not have to attend school in hand-me-downs nor would they face the kind of teasing they often get from students who can afford name brands. True, students from wealthier families may wear nicer shoes and accessories, but in general the uniforms will create an atmosphere of equality for all students.

Contrary to what opponents argue, uniforms will not create uniformity. Just because students are dressed the same does not mean they won’t be able to develop as individuals. In fact, because uniforms enable students to stop worrying so much about their appearance, students can focus more on who they are on the inside and on what they’re supposed to be learning in the classroom.

Furthermore, uniforms will improve discipline in the schools. Whenever a group of people dresses alike, they automatically have a sense of community, a sense of common purpose. Uniforms mean something. School uniforms will constantly remind students that they are indeed in school—and they're in school to learn. Getting dressed for school itself will be a form of discipline that students will carry into the classroom.

Though many students will complain, requiring public school students to wear uniforms makes sense. Students will learn more—both about themselves and about the world around them.

Sample “4” Essay

I don't think that requiring public school students to wear uniforms is a good idea. The way the student dresses makes a powerful statement about who he or she is, and the school years are an important time for them to explore their identities. Uniforms would undermine that. They would also have little, if any, positive affect on students with discipline problems.

Each student has their own personality, and one way he expresses who he is is through his clothing. Clothes are an important way for young people to show others how they feel about themselves and what is important to them. If public school students are forced to wear uniforms, this important form of self-expression will be taken away.

I remember back when I was in junior high school. My parents had given me complete freedom to buy my back to school wardrobe. They took me to the mall and let me choose everything, from sweaters and shirts to socks and shoes. I'll never forget how independent that made me feel. I could choose clothing that I liked. I did make a few bad choices, but at least those were my choices. Students today, I am sure, would feel the same way.

Besides, America values individuality. What happens to that value in an environment where everybody looks the same?

Though discipline in schools is a serious concern, uniforms are not the answer. Discipline problems usually come from a lack of discipline at home, and that's a problem that uniforms can't begin to address. A student who is rowdy in the classroom isn't going to change their behavior because they are wearing a white shirt and tie. In fact, discipline problems might increase if students are required to wear uniforms. Students often make trouble because they want attention. Well-behaved students who used to get attention from how they dressed might now become trouble-makers so they can continue to get attention.

Uniforms are not the answer to the problems public school students face. In fact, because they'll restrict individuality and may even increase disciplinary problems, they'll only add to the problem.

Sample “3” Essay

I don't think that requiring public school students to wear uniforms is a good idea. Each student has their own identity and express who he is through clothing. The school years are an important in finding one's personality. Uniforms would also have little, if any, positive affect on students with discipline problems.

In junior high school I let my children buy their back-to-school wardrobe, anything they wanted. I let them choose everything. I'll never forget how that made them feel. As they would say, awesome! They could choose clothing that they liked.

We are told to be yourself. But how can a young person be in a country where everybody is the same.

Discipline in schools is of a serious concern, uniforms are not the answer. It is the home life of many students that make bad behavior. If the parents use drugs or don't discipline children at home, that's a problem that the school and uniforms can't do anything about. A student who is causing trouble at school isn't going to change their behavior because they are wearing a white blouse or pleated skirt. In fact, discipline problems might even get worse if students are required to wear uniforms because of not getting enough attention about the way he or she is dressed.

Uniforms are not the answer to the problems public school students face. In fact, because they will keep them from being who they are they will make it worse.

Sample “1” Essay

Public school students should wear uniforms to. Not just private school students. I do not want to teach in a private school; but I like them wearing a uniform every day. The look neat and well-groom no matter if they are low income or high income. Social level doesn't matter.

Wearing uniforms is good because they build a sense of community. Everyone from the same school wear the same clothes. The students know if someone is from there school right away. It makes it easier for students, rich or poor, to make friends with people. They don't have to worry about what to wear in the morning because they always know.

Also they don't have to spend as much money on cloths.

Many students think it is unfair that public school students could wear whatever they wanted. Maybe private school students shouldn't wear uniforms either. Then everyone would be able to dress the way they want to and be individualistic.

Some people say uniforms would make bad students behave better. Because they wouldn't always be talking about who has a better sneakers or better jeans. They might have paid more attention in school like they should of, and then everyone could learn more.

Sample “6” Essay

The best way for teachers to boost their students' science test scores is to make students excited by science with real-life examples. Before ever asking students to memorize facts, the teacher should demonstrate a scientific process or even teach students how to experiment for themselves. This allows them to understand the process with their senses before trying to fix it in their intellect.

The following examples could be used to provide anticipation of a lesson to come. First, when studying insects, the teacher might pass around an ant farm in the classroom and let students observe the little arthropods going about their complex, individual tasks before asking the student to read that ants have a rigid social structure, just as people do. If possible, it would be even better to take them on a field trip to see how ants build hills outdoors.

Another example is to let students have hands-on experience with telescopes. Close observation of far-away objects is magical; the rings of Saturn really exist! The Sea of Tranquility, a crater on the moon's surface looks as close as a building on the next block. This introduction to the galaxy and the universe brings the opportunity for lessons about the earth's rotation and about the geophysical facts of the craters that comprise the moon's laughing face. Lessons like these come alive in a way that does not exist in lecture format.

This approach to teaching science should not begin in high school or college but in grade school or even in kindergarten. Scientific facts are important, of course, but without them we have no real understanding. Curiosity is as vital to learning as the ability to memorize, perhaps more so. Curiosity will keep students learning long after they've passed their final test in school.

Sample “4” Essay

Science is important for many reasons, but especially because today's world is based on technology. If other countries get ahead of us in science the consequences may be dire. So it is extremely important for our students to excell.

The first and best way to teach science is to make the student see the practical application of it. For example, if the teacher is teaching botony, she might explain the medical uses of plants. Or if teaching physics, she might show a diagram of a rocket ship. Field trips are a good idea, as well, perhaps to a factory that makes dolls. The point is to make it practical and interesting to boys and girls alike.

When I was in high school I had a teacher named Mr. Wiley who let us mix things in jars and watch the results. Sometimes they were unexpected! Such as a kind of mushroom we planted that was poisonous and reminded us of the horror movies we all loved in those days. Mr. Wiley made it interesting in a personal way, so that it wasn't just dry facts. And he told us the practical uses, such as this particular kind of mushroom is used in the making of certain insect poison.

In this day and age it is important for all of us to know something about science because it affects all aspects of our lives, but for young people it is vital. Their livelihoods—and even their lives—may depend on that knowledge.

Sample “3” Essay

Science is a necessary skill because it can effect each one of us, such as the making of the hydrogen bomb or finding a cure for AIDS. It is responsible for TV, cars, and a host of other items we take for granted. So we all depend on it and need to learn it.

The best way to teach science is to have a good textbook and also good equipment in the classroom. If the equipment is poor there is no way they are going to learn it, which is why the poorer schools are behind the richer ones and also behind other countries. Its the most important factor in the classroom today.

Another way to teach science is through field trips and video-tapes. There are many tapes in the library and every school should have a good video system. Also a good library is important. And there are many places to take the class that they would find interesting.

When I was in school I thought science was boring. I wish I had learned more about it because I think it would make me a better teacher someday as well as better understand the world of technology. If we don't understand technology we are at its mercy, and it is something we rely on to get us through our lives. Without science we would have no technological advances. If other countries are ahead of us it is our own fault for not putting science as a priority.

Sample “1” Essay

Science is important and we should teach it to our students in the right way. A scientist coming in to talk would be one way. Also experiments that the students can do. The reason it is important, is other countries are ahead of us and we may have a war. Then if there technology is better they will take us over. So it is dangerous not to have students that know a lot about science.

If we teach our children to rely too much on science and technology what will happen if it fails. If the computers fail we are in serious trouble. Businesses will suffer and medical research will suffer. So science is important and our students should learn but it isn't everything and they should learn that they should study other things too, like how to make a good living for their family.

If we teach science in the right way our country will be better off as well as our children when they are caught up to the new millennium

Sample “6” Essay

Television has an important place in society for two reasons. First, it is a common denominator that can be used as a teaching tool for kids. Second, it bridges gaps between cultures. With a simple flick of the switch people can tune in and watch Congressional meetings, travel down the Ganges, or see the Scottish highlands. They can learn about other cultures, cooking, or architecture. They can witness events half a world away as soon as they take place.

Since everyone in every classroom from kindergarten to college has been exposed to television, its programs can bring about lively discussions and a meeting of the minds. Television opens windows on the world that are unique. It helps students see more of the world than any generation before them. Given the right focus in a classroom, it can be the start of a writing exercise or a debate. The skills learned in these kinds of exercises prepare students for more complicated tasks later on in life.

By watching engaging, educational television programming, people from all walks of life can learn about others. Knowing and understanding the habits, religion, and cultural traits of people from distant parts of the globe helps bring the world closer together. It makes people more tolerant of others and can only promote peace in a global village that becomes increasingly smaller every day we live. Its place in society is vital.

Sample “4” Essay

Many people say they don’t watch television, and I say good for them! There is very little on TV today that is worth watching. And yet, for all that, it has an important place in society. I believe, for example, that it is an excellent teaching tool for kids who have had less than a sterling formal education in the lower grades. It’s something they can relate to and something they will have in common with the other people in their class. It’s something they have in common with the teacher, for that matter. And that is all-important.

Television opens a window on the world that is unique. It helps students to see more of the world than any generation before them has been able to see. With a simple flick of the switch they can look in and watch the goings-on in congress; or travel down the Ganges river or see the Scottish highlands. They can learn about other cultures, learn how to cook or build a house. They can witness events half a world away as soon as they take place.

Here is one advantage of television, as it can be used as a teaching tool. In classrooms today, especially in community colleges, for example, there are students from every strata of society, from many different social classes. Television is one thing they have in common and can bring about lively discussions and a meeting of the minds. Rich and poor alike, privileged or under privileged, all have looked through that tiny window and see wonders and horrors, current events and events long-past. And all can be used as fodder for lively class discussion, for making the subjects we’re teaching come alive.

We might take pride in saying we never watch television, but we shouldn’t be so quick to put it down—especially as it pertains to teaching. Television is one thing students have in common, and I think it was

Winston Churchill who said, “The only thing worse than democracy is any other form of government.” I think the same can be said for television: “The only thing worse than television is no television.” Sure, there’s a lot on that’s not worth watching, but there’s also a lot that is. And to ignore it’s influence is to ignore an excellent, if flawed, teaching tool.

I sometimes wish TV had never been invented. Especially for the younger generation, who get much of their information about the world in a distorted fashion from “the box.” Of course it is entertaining after a hard day, but at the end what have you gained?

And the news gets distorted. We get our news from “a reliable source” but who is that? Some gossip columnist in Washington or New York that has nothing to do with our real life. We get to see how rotten our politicians are and maybe that’s a good thing because earlier in history they could cover it up. We get to watch them on TV and judge for ourselves instead of taking someone else’s word for it. So television can be a good thing if watched in moderation.

Another way TV corrupts society is through advertising. It tells us to buy, buy, buy. It gives us super models and sport’s figures to tell you what to buy and where. It gives you movie stars advertising even in a TV movie away from commercials, by holding a can of Coke or other product. All of which subliminally tells you to buy Coke. They say they even have messages flashed on the screen so on the commercial you will get up and go to the kitchen. I find myself bringing home products I never even use. The worse thing is the shows in which difficult life situations get solved in a half hour. You could never do it in real life but on TV it is easy. It gives us an erroneous view of the world.

I think we should try to do away with it in our homes even if it is hard. After all, it’s your baby-sitter and advise-giver, and even your friend if you are lonely. But give it a week to be away from it and then watch intermittently. Your life will be better for it.

Sample “1” Essay

TV can be good or bad depending on how you look at it. It can be all you do if you are not careful. It can take you away from your kids if you use it as a baby sitter or when you come home from work that is all you do. Also you will never get the real story. You will never know if they are telling the truth or trying a snow job to sell you something.

I grew up with television like most people. It is a good thing if you try to learn from it. It probably will help in a class room discussion if the children all watch the same show. In grade school where I went we had current events and television had its place.

One example is the news. We know if we are going to war the minute the president makes his decision. We can watch it all happening. We can know if there is a scandal in Washington. And the latest medical facts are on TV. So TV can be good in that aspect.

It can be bad too. For example the shows for teenagers. When I was a teenager I liked them, all the music and the dancing. But now it is different. Drugs are spread through MTV because of the musicians who you can tell do them. And they are models for our kids.

But in some aspects TV is good and in some it is bad. I think spending time away from it will make you feel better. All the news is bad news. But you can get an education too if you just watch public TV. It is good in some aspects and bad in some.

Life is full of problems, but the method we use to approach those problems often determines whether we're happy or miserable. Bob Maynard says, "Problems are opportunities in disguise." If we approach problems with Maynard's attitude, we can see that problems are really opportunities to learn about others and ourselves. They enable us to live happier and more fulfilling lives.

Maynard's quote applies to all kinds of problems. To share a personal story, I faced a problem just last week when our family's kitchen sink developed a serious leak. Water puddled all over our new kitchen floor, and to make matters worse, our landlord was out of town for the week. Since my family is large, we couldn't afford to wait for the landlord's return nor could we afford an expensive plumbing bill. Taking charge, I decided to learn how to fix it myself. The best place to start was at my local library. There, I found a great fix-it-yourself book, and in just a few hours, I had figured out the cause of the leak. Not only did I repair the leak, but I know now that I can rely on my own abilities to solve other everyday problems.

I think it's important to remember that no matter how big a problem is; it's still an opportunity. Whatever kind of situation we face, problems give us the chance to learn and grow, both physically and mentally. Problems challenge us and give us the chance to do things we've never done before, to learn things we never knew before. They teach us what we're capable of doing, and often they give us the chance to surprise ourselves.

Sample “4” Essay

Just the word "problem" can send some of us into a panic. But problems can be good things, too. Problems are situations that make us think and force us to be creative and resourceful. They can also teach us things we didn't know before.

For example, I had a problem in school a few years ago when I couldn't understand my math class. I started failing my quizzes and homework assignments. I wasn't sure what to do, so finally I went to the teacher and asked for help. She said she would arrange for me to be tutored by another student who was her best student. In return, though, I'd have to help that student around school. I wasn't sure what she meant by that until I met my tutor. She was handicapped.

My job was to help her carry her books from class to class. I'd never even spoken to someone in a wheelchair before and I was a little scared. But she turned out to be the nicest person I've ever spent time with. She helped me understand everything I need to know for math class and she taught me a lot about what it's like to be handicapped. I learned to appreciate everything that I have, and I also know that people with disabilities are special not because of what they can't do, but because of who they are.

So you see that wonderful things can come out of problems. You just have to remember to look for the positive things and not focus on the negative.

Sample "3" Essay

The word "problem" is a negative word but its just an opportunity as Mr. Bob Maynard has said. It can be teaching tool besides.

For example, I had a problem with my son last year when he wanted a bigger allowance. I said no and he had to earn it. He mowed the lawn and in the fall he raked leaves. In the winter he shovelled the walk. After that he appreciated it more.

Its not the problem but the sollution that matters. My son learning the value of work and earning money. (It taught me the value of money to when I had to give him a bigger allowance!) After that he could get what he wanted at Toys Are Us and not have to beg. Which was better for me too. Sometimes we forget that both children and there parents can learn a lot from problems and we can teach our children the value of over-coming trouble. Which is as important as keeping them out of trouble. As well we can teach them the value of money. That is one aspect of a problem that we many-times forget.

So problems are a good teaching tool as well as a good way to let you're children learn, to look at the silver lining behind every cloud.

Sample "1" Essay

I agree with the quote that problems are opportunities in disguise. Sometimes problems are opportunities, too.

I have a lot of problems like anyone else does. Sometimes there very difficult and I don't no how to handle them. When I have a really big problem, I sometimes ask my parents or freinds for advise. Sometimes they help, sometimes they don't, then I have to figure out how to handle it myself.

One time I had a big problem. Where someone stole my wallet and I had to get to a job interview. But I had no money and no ID. This happen in school. So I went to the principles office and reported it. He called the man I was supposed to interview with. Who rescheduled the interview for me. So I still had the opportunity to interview and I'm proud to say I got the job. In fact I'm still working there!

Problems can be opportunities if you just look at them that way. Instead of the other way around.

Sample "6" Essay

Courage and cowardice seem like absolutes. We are often quick to label other people, or ourselves, as either "brave" or "timid," "courageous" or "cowardly." However, one bright afternoon on a river deep in the wilds of the Ozark mountains, I learned that these qualities are as changeable as mercury.

During a cross-country drive, my friend Nina and I decided to stop at a campsite in Missouri and spend the afternoon on a boat trip down Big Piney River, 14 miles through the wilderness. We rented a canoe and paddled happily off. Things were fine for the first seven or eight miles. We gazed at the overhanging bluffs, commented on the dogwoods in bloom, and marveled at the clarity of the water. Then, in approaching Devil's Elbow, a bend in the river, the current suddenly swept us in toward the bank, under the low-hanging branches of a weeping willow. The canoe tipped over, and I was pulled under. My foot caught for just a few seconds on the willow's submerged roots, and just as I surfaced, I saw the canoe sweeping out, upright again, but empty. Nina was frantically swimming after it.

Standing by cravenly, I knew I should help, but I was petrified. I let my friend brave the treacherous rapids and haul the canoe back onto the gravel bar by herself. But then came the scream, and Nina dashed back into the water. In the bottom of the canoe, a black and brown, checkerboard-patterned copperhead snake lay coiled. I don't know exactly why, but the inborn terror of snakes is something that has passed me by completely. I actually find them rather charming in a scaly sort of way, but Nina was still screaming. In a calm way that must have seemed smug, I said, "We're in its home, it's not in ours." And gently, I prodded it with the oar until it reared up, slithered over the side of the canoe, and raced away.

Later that night, in our cozy, safe motel room, we agreed that we each had cold chills thinking about what might have happened. Still, I learned something important from the ordeal. I know that, had we encountered only the rapids, I might have come away ashamed, labeling myself a coward, and had we encountered only the snake, Nina might have done the same. I also know that neither of us will ever again be quite so apt to brand another person as lacking courage. Because we will always know that, just around the corner, may be the snake or the bend in the river or the figure in the shadows or something else as yet unanticipated, that will cause our own blood to freeze.

Sample "4" Essay

Courage can be shown in many ways and by many kinds of people. One does not have to be rich, or educated, or even an adult to show true courage.

For example, a very heartbreaking thing happened in our family. It turned out all right but at the time it almost made us lose our faith. However, it also taught us a lesson regarding courage. In spite of his father's and my repeated warnings, my son Matt went ice-fishing with some friends and fell through the ice into the frigid water beneath. He is prone to do things that are dangerous no matter how many times he's told. Fortunately there were grown-ups near and they were able to throw him a life line and pull him to safety. However, when they got him onto shore they discovered he was unconscious. There were vital signs but they were weak, the paramedics pronounced him in grave danger.

He is his little sisters (Nans) hero. He is 16 and she is 13, just at the age where she admires everything he does. When they took him to the hospital she insisted on going that night to see him, and she insisted on staying with me there. My husband thought we should insist she go home, but it was Christmas vacation for her so there was no real reason. So we talked it over and she stayed. She stayed every night for the whole week just to be by Matt's side. And when he woke up she was there. Her smiling face the was first thing he saw.

In spite of the fact she was just a child and it was frightening for her to be there beside her brother she loves so much, and had to wonder, every day if he would die, she stayed. So courage has many faces.

Sample "3" Essay

Courage is not something we are born with. It is something that we have to learn.

For example when your children are growing up you should teach them courage. Teach them to face lifes challanges and not to show there fear. For instance my father. Some people would say he was harsh, but back then I didnt think of it that way. One time he took me camping and I had a tent of my own. I wanted to crawl in with him but he said there was nothing to be afriad of. And I went to sleep sooner than I would have expect. He taught me not to be afriad.

There are many reasons for courage. In a war a solder has to be couragous and a mother has to be no less couragous if she is rasing a child alone and has to make a living. So, in me it is totally alright to be afriad as long as you face your fear. I have been greatful to him ever since that night.

Sometimes parents know what is best for there kids even if at the time it seems like a harsh thing. I learned not to show my fear that night, which is an important point to courage. In everyday life it is important to learn how to be strong. If we dont learn from our parents, like I did from my father, then we have to learn it after we grow up. But it is better to learn it, as a child. I have never been as afriad as I was that night, and I learned a valuble lesson from it.

Sample “1” Essay

Courage is important in a battle and also ordinary life. In a war if your buddy depends on you and you let him down he might die. Courage is also important in daily life. If you have sickness in the family or if you encounter a mugger on the street you will need all the courage you can get. There are many dangers in life that only courage will see you through.

Once, my apartment was burglarized and they stole a TV and micro-wave. I didn't have very much. They took some money too. I felt afraid when I walked in and saw things moved or gone. But I called the police and waited for them inside my apartment which was brave and also some might say stupid! But the police came and took my statement and also later caught the guy. Another time my girlfriend and I were in my apartment and we looked out the window and there was somebody suspicious out in front. It turned out to be a false alarm but she was scared and she said because I was calm it made her feel better. So courage was important to me, in my relationship with my girlfriend.

So courage is important not only in war but also in life.

Writing, at least the kind of basic composition needed to be successful in school, can be taught. The most important factor in teaching a basic composition class, which usually has students who have been less than successful writers in the past, is a simple one. The student should be asked to write about something interesting in a context with a purpose beyond “English class.” In other words, the student should want to learn to write. For students who have fallen behind for one reason or another, it's difficult to see a writing class as anything but an exercise in plummeting self-esteem. Many students believe that writing well is a mystery only those “with talent” can understand, and that “English class” is just something to endure. The first thing to teach students is that writing has a purpose that pertains to their lives. The teacher must appeal to emotion as well as to intellect.

I believe the best approach is to ask students to keep a journal in two parts. In one part, grammar and style shouldn't matter, the way they have to matter in the formal assignments that come later in the course. In this part of the journal, the students should be asked to keep track of things they encounter during the day that interest them or cause them to be happy, sad, angry, or afraid. In the second part of the journal they should keep track of subjects that make them sit up and take notice. These can include things that happen in class or ideas that come to them when reading an assignment for class. These journal notes should whet the intellect and excite curiosity.

For teaching grammar, the teacher can present exercises in the context of a one-page essay or story because it gives writing a context. Too often in the early grades, students complete dry drill and skill exercises that take the fun out of writing. Diagramming sentences, identifying nouns and verbs, or labeling adjectives seems far removed from the skill of writing. Appeal to emotion, intellect, and curiosity will really succeed in engaging the whole student and awakening the urge to write.

Sample “4” Essay

I believe writing can be taught if we work hard enough at it as teachers. The important thing is to teach students that it can be enjoyable. Years of fearing writing lie behind a lot of students, and it's one of the biggest stumbling blocks. But it can be gotten over.

Having them break up into small groups is one way to teach writing to reluctant or ill-prepared students. Have the students discuss a topic they are all interested in—say a recent TV show or an event coming up at school, then plan a paper and come back and discuss the idea with the whole class. Your next step can be to have them actually write the paper, then get into their small groups again and criticize what they've done.

Another way for students who don't like the small groups is one on one conferences. But don't just talk about grammar or sentence structure or paragraphing, talk about the content of his paper. I did a summer internship teaching in an inner city school, and I remember one young man. He hated small groups so we talked privately. He had written a paper on going to a city-sponsored camping trip and seeing white-tailed deer, which was his first time. He was excited about it, and I suggested he write a paper about his experience. He did and, except for some trouble with grammar, it was an A paper, full of active verbs and telling detail!

Finally, try to get your students to read. If you have to, drag them to the community library yourself. Not only will it help their writing, it will help them in life. Only by getting them interested in the written word and by helping them to see that it matters in their everyday lives can you really reach them and set them on the path of good writing.

Yes. Writing can be taught if you are willing to take the time and do the hard work and maybe give a few extra hours. No student is hopeless. And writing is so important in today's world that it's worth the extra effort.

Sample "3" Essay

I don't think writing can be taught necessarily, although if the students are half-way motivated anything's possible. The first thing is get them interested in the subject and give them a lot of writing to do in class. They may not do it if it is all outside class as many poorly prepared students hate homework. I know I did as a kid!

Writing does not come natural for most people especially in the poorer school districts. Unless they are lucky enough to have parents who read to them. That is another aspect of teaching how to write. Assign a lot of reading. If you don't read you can't write, and that is lacking in a lot of students' backgrounds. If your students won't read books tell them to read comic books if nothing else. Anything to get them to read.

The second thing is to have the student come in for a conference once a week. That is one way to see what is going on with them in school and at home. A lot of kids in the poorer schools have conflict at home and that is why they fail. So give them a lot of praise because that's what they need.

Finally don't give up. It can be done. Many people born into poverty go on to do great things. You can help and you never know who you will inspire and who will remember you as the best teacher they ever had.

Sample "1" Essay

You will be able to tell I am one of the people that never learned to write well. I wish I had but my personal experience as a struggling writer will inspire my students, that's the most I can hope for. Writing can be taught, but you have to be ready to inspire the student. Give them assignments on subjects they like and keep after them to read. Take them to the public library if they haven't been and introduce them to books.

If you can't write people will call you dumb or stupid which hurts your self-esteem. I know from experience.

The next thing is have them come in and talk to you. You never know what is going on in their lives that is keeping them from studying and doing their best. Maybe they have a mom that works all the time or a dad who has left the home. Be sure to teach the whole person. Also have them write about what is going on in their lives, not a dry subject like the drinking age. Have the student write about their personal experience and it will come out better. Writing can be taught if the student is motivated. So hang in there.
